Expect school tax cut

Scheduling final 1978-79 budget action immediately following a public hearing Sept. 5, the Granite City Board of Education on Tuesday night tentatively appropriated $24,169,205, up $653,521, but with a probable decrease in the tax rate. The $653,521 rise compares with increases of $645,213 for the 1977-78 year, $320,000 for 1976-77 and $800,875 for 1975-76. Tentative new levies total of $273,202, compared to $9,225,364 authorized and $8,816,915 extended in 1977-78.

Holding the 1978-79 levies to $8,842,173 will depend on several factors, including the amount needed for bonds and interest. For that cost, $644,173 has been tentatively levied, subject to funding of an approved debt-retirement state grant of $273,202.

Gov. James R. Thompson has vetoed the bill that includes the grant, but with 400 downstate school districts affected there may be a veto override by the legislature this fall.

The latest state aid projection printout by the Illinois Office of Education is included in the new Granite City school budget but may be altered with a new printout Aug. 9.

An ILE projection of an added $300,000 aid for District Nine based on Monday's state aid signing by the governor may be in error due to an inaccurate local enrollment estimate by the state.

The tentative 1978-79 budget consists of: education $20,281,287, up $646,643; operations, building and maintenance $3,285,378, down $42,272; bonds and interest $1,082,000, down $10,260; transportation $930,540, up $94,910; and Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund $610,000, down $35,500.

New tentative levies are $6,120,000 for education, $900,000 for operations-building maintenance, $298,000 for transportation, $650,000 for municipal retirement, $644,173 for bonds and interest, $120,000 for life safety (safety-related building remodeling projects) and $130,000 for the working cash fund.

With several variable factors yet to be determined, the new total school tax rate may be $3.684, compared to the 1977-78 estimated figure of $3.7647 and actual rates of $3.80.

A breakdown of year-to-year estimated, 1977-78 actual and 1978-79 estimated rates follows:

Education $2.55 same and same; operations-building maintenance 37.3 cents, same and same; transportation, 12 cents, same and same; municipal retirement, 28.78 cents, 30.4 and 27.08; bonds and interest, 33.19 cents, 35.1 and 26.84; life safety, five cents, same and same; and working cash fund, five cents, same and same.

Supr. Bob J. Davis said the tentative budget "represents the efforts of many staff members, especially Tully Heubner."

"It has been our intent in developing this budget to provide for the many programs offered in this school district in a manner (Continued on Page 3)

CONSTRUCTION WORK STOPPAGE. The stoppage began Tuesday at highway and building projects throughout this area as laborers went on strike and other crafts declined to cross picket lines. This view on Tuesday shows the current status of work on the new Madison middle school (sixth, seventh and eighth grades) located on Farish Street two blocks north of Madison High School.

Concern on delay in talks

With a 12-county laborers' strike halting virtually all construction since Tuesday morning, concern is being voiced over the absence of new negotiating talks until a session scheduled for tomorrow in Clayton.

The Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce board last night voted to contact all parties today and stress the injurious effect of the work stoppage, which some observers are predicting could last for weeks.

A federal mediator has agreed to participate in the contract talks but has voiced disappointment over an apparent lack of new proposals. Wages and working rules and conditions, including the geographic jurisdiction of various groups, are believed to be factors in the disagreement.

Other construction crafts either have reached agreements with contractors or are still talking. But while they are not directly involved in the dispute that began early Tuesday, they are respecting the picket lines at building and highway projects.

About 6,000 laborers are idled, and approximately $350 million in construction is tied up, including a new Madison school, expansion of St. Elizabeth Hospital, sewer installation work and numerous structures and roads.

Mediator Thomas O'Brien talked informally Wednesday with representatives of the Laborers Southwestern District Council and the Southern Illinois Builders Association. Tomorrow's session is to be held at the U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service office.

The previous laborer contract expired at midnight Monday night and negotiations ending at 3 a.m. Tuesday failed to produce an agreement. There have been indications that the two parties have relatively strong differences.

Wayne Barber Jr., SIBA executive director, said the laborers rejected a raise offer of $2.65 hourly over three years, which he described as similar to that accepted or favored by ironworkers.

Fearred Chicago 'hoods' after raiding tavern

Lieutenant Gary Lee Burns of the Madison County Sheriff Department feared for his life after investigative work by himself and the late Captain Demos Nicholas led to a raid at the former Marco Polo Lounge on Route 162 near State Aid Route 35, a federal trial exhibit shows.

Burns, a Granite Cityan, testified before a federal grand jury in June 1977 of being threatened three times. The tavern to which he referred changed ownership after the raid and subsequently burned.

Questioned by Attorney Carver while appearing before the grand jury, Burns was asked, "On this Marco Polo Lounge, was this your case? Were you the primary responsibility for it?"

The exhibit continues: A. "Yes, I was told by our chief deputy at that time, Demos Nicholas, that the State Police were in our area and they were there to close up a place called the Marco Polo Lounge."

"And that if we more or less beat them to it, that it would make us look better. And I said, from what I understand, there's some bad people hanging around there and a guy could get hurt pretty easy."

He said that's right, but he said if you go down there and get that place, he said, you won't have to worry about those things. I said, all right."

Q. "Demos Nicholas told you that?" A. "Yes, sir."

Q. "What was his rank at that time?" A. "He was the chief deputy right next to the sheriff."

Q. "Who was the sheriff at that time?" A. "John Maeras."

Q. "Where was John Cooper at that time?" A. "He was a lieutenant at that time. I'm not sure just what his position was with the department, but he was one of my supervisors."

Q. "That was the first threat that you received. What was the second?" A. "The second one was another phone call and it was also from a male and it came right after — no, I remember the other one now. There was a deputy from our Department by the name of Pete Klobeschur who lives in Collinsville."

Q. "How do you spell his last name?" A. "K-i-l-o-b-e-s-s-h-u-r, I believe. Pete contacted me one day and he said, I understand you've got some problems."

"And I said, what do you mean, and he said there were two people down here from Chicago and they were wanting to know who was responsible for the arrest at the Marco Polo Lounge."

"And I said, what did you tell them. He said, well, I didn't tell them anything. I said, what did they say. He said they were down here to take care of whoever took care of the Marco Polo Lounge, that you were stepping on some toes."

Q. "Is that the second threat?" A. "Yeah."

Q. "Okay. And you said there was another threat?" A. "Yeah, the other phone call I got was also from a male."

Q. "Approximately when did the third one?" A. "This one occurred, it was either late

'73 or early '74. It was right about the time when we also raided a place called Big Jenny's Lounge in Madison."

"And this phone call said you haven't learned anything yet, you better remember you've got a ten-year-old daughter that has to walk the streets of Madison. And that was the only thing they said."

MR. CARVER: "Is that true? I mean is the information correct? You do in fact have a ten-year-old daughter?" A. "Yes, yes."

Q. "That was the third call?" A. "Yes, sir."

Q. "Have you received any other calls?" A. "No."

Q. "Have you had any threats made to you in person?" (Continued on Page 16)

Liquor license suspended

Mayor Paul Schuler announced Tuesday that the Upper Level Lounge, 19th and State streets, has had its liquor license suspended for seven days.

Schuler as mayor, is also liquor commissioner. He said the action was taken "for threatening the welfare of Granite City and the citizens of Granite City."

Two incidents occurred at the lounge during the weekend involving several hundred people and four arrests. Mayor Schuler said he also is studying the status of the liquor license of Rico's II Lounge, 3875 Namooki Road, after police seized the wrong license early Monday.

A 21-year-old Hazelwood, Mo., youth allegedly was beaten by a bouncer for the lounge in the parking lot, causing police to take the liquor license from the wall. The license had an expiration date of May 1, 1978.

However, a check of city records shows a new license was issued for the current fiscal year to the lounge, but not hanging behind the bar.

Rico's II was allowed to reopen Tuesday, but the mayor said he plans to meet early next week with the city attorney and chief of police and review reports of the beating Monday to determine if action should be taken.

'Dog days' a city topic

A proposal to fine dog owners whose pets soil public sidewalks and property, similar to a law making headlines in New York City, was proposed to the Granite City Council Tuesday night by Alderman Roy Poulos, chairman of the city's ordinance committee.

Poulos said dogs here are creating an unsightly and unhealthy condition and he feels an ordinance should be prepared to establish a fine for dog owners who do not clean up after their animals on public property and sidewalks.

The New York law has gained national attention. New Yorkers are purchasing special clean-up kits from vending machines in parks, only to find many of the city's trash barrels are already full.

"What are you supposed to do? Carry it around with you?" one New Yorker was quoted as saying Tuesday. The law there sets a $25 fine for failure by owners to collect any residue from their animals.

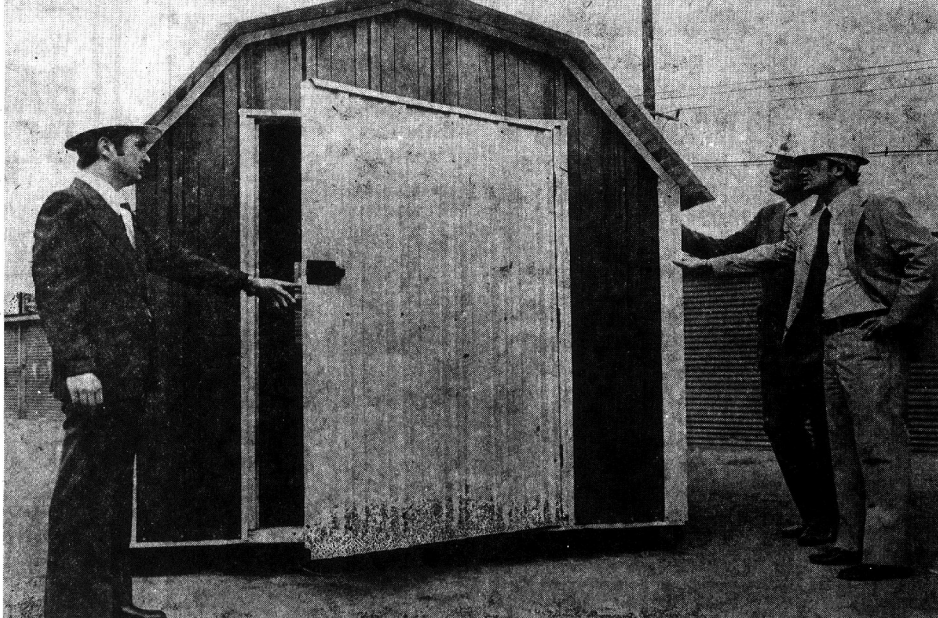

Mayor Paul Schuler suggested that Poulos meet with the city attorney and try to draft an ordinance which would be acceptable to the aldermen.

GETTING READY FOR NEXT CAMELOT AUCTION. The Granite City Optimist and Rotary clubs are beginning preparations for their annual benefit Camelot auction, to be held Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Sunset Hills Country Club. One of the hundreds of items to be auctioned is an 8x8-foot wood storage building made with the aid of steel manufactured by Granite

In addition to her leadership role with "special Olympics," she for the fourth consecutive summer has directed swimming instruction for the handicapped.

"Graduation" is set for tomorrow morning following a picnic outing by the group this evening at the Arlington pool.

"She's terrific," is the opinion of one of those who has been spending five mornings a week this summer at the Roger Bowler family's swimming pool. In 1975 and 1976, the pool at the Dr. David Friedman residence was utilized; last year and this, the Bowlers have been host.

About 30 students are taught swimming each year, including the physically handicapped, deaf, partially sighted, cerebral palsied and stroke victims.

2 men sought in rape case

A 15-year-old Granite City girl told police at 12:30 p.m. Monday that she had been abducted by two men the previous day and raped by one of the men.

Madison County sheriff's deputies had received the initial report of the incident shortly after the girl was put out of a car in Granite City early Sunday morning.

The girl reported being forced into a light blue four-door car by two men at 12:30 a.m. Sunday in the 2500 block of Washington Avenue.

The abductors were described as a heavy-set man in his 20s, with dark brown hair feathered to the neckline, about five feet, 11 inches tall, wearing jeans and a light-colored tee shirt, and a man about 18 or 19 years old, slim build, five feet, nine inches tall, wearing blue jeans and driving the auto.

The vehicle was driven to the Horseshoe Lake area, where the heavy man raped the girl about 2:30 a.m. Sunday, it was related.

Afterward, she was driven to the 2400 block of Washington Avenue and put out of the car.

Police took the girl to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment. An investigation is continuing.

Horse riders compete, plan a 'fun show' next

A $1,200 purse was divided by winning riders in the annual "money show," sponsored by the Trailriders Saddle Club of Granite City and held during the weekend at the club's arena on Chouteau Slough Road at Rock Road, near the Chain of Rocks Canal levee.

Diane Gregorson of St. Charles, Mo., won three events, taking the top prize money. She captured blue ribbons in the ladies western pleasure, open western pleasure and halter class (mares), showing Sippin Whiskey.

Shirley O'Connell, a local rider, was a double winner, riding Lucky in the ladies gaited and fox trotting events.

Another double winner was Bruce Gilliland of Bonne Terre, Mo., riding Husky Britches in the open flag and open plug races.

Two local riders, Eric Pritchard and Tina Sloan, captured first-place prizes.

Pritchard won the gaited cowboy pleasure event in Trademark's Ginger, and Miss Sloan, riding Butch, took top honors in the junior poles event.

Other first-place horsemen were:

Brian Compton of Butler, Ill., showing Leo's Fella, won the junior barrels race; Dave Jones of Litchfield, riding Speedy R. Leon, senior poles; and Bart Manguso Sr. of St. Louis, on King's Royal Heir, won the open trail class.

Tracy Hefley of Belleville won the haltering class for geldings, showing Drifty Dodger and Cynthia Meier of Troy was first in haltering (stallions), showing Flash Bac.

In a special event, Bill Smith of Granite City won a $100 prize.

The Trailriders are planning a "fun show" for Saturday, Aug. 12, starting at 6:30 p.m. The public is being invited to view the show without charge.

Woman thwarts tavern break-in

A woman employee of Victor's Tavern, 2001 Illinois Ave., cleaning the premises at 2:45 a.m. Wednesday, noticed a car circle the tavern several times and then found that an outside door had been forced open to a rear storage room.

The woman awakened her husband and then hid. When she saw the door start to move slowly, she pulled it wide open and yelled in a loud voice.

She saw one or two men run past a parked car, and apparently they returned to the vehicle and drove away before police arrived at the scene.

It has not been determined if any items are missing.

Reckless homicide verdict at inquest on death of bicyclist

A coroner's jury in Granite City Tuesday returned verdicts on the cause of death of three local youths.

The inquests were conducted by Madison County Deputy Coroner Dick Mizell.

The coroner's jury found that the July 11 death of 18-year-old Eric Michael Morgan, Rural Route Two, Box 1015, Granite City, was caused by reckless homicide, and referred the verdict to the Madison County state's attorney's office. A coroner's jury verdict is not binding on any criminal prosecution.

Larry G. Webb, 39, Rural Route One, Granite City, has been charged with reckless homicide after his auto allegedly struck Mr. Morgan on Maryville Road near Route 203 early July 11. Webb allegedly had a hostage in the car and was driving in a reckless manner when his car struck the boy's bicycle.

The coroner's jury also studied the July 2 shooting death of Vernie Lee Hufstetler, 24, of 2409 Bryan Ave., and concluded that justifiable homicide was the cause of his death.

Mr. Hufstetler allegedly was shot in the chest and left arm by Terry Gargac, 26, of 2008 Bryan Ave. Gargac told authorities Mr. Hufstetler was angry and approached Gargac's home with a shotgun, threatening to shoot Gargac.

When Gargac believed Mr. Hufstetler was about to shoot, Gargac fired his 22-caliber pistol, fatally wounding the victim, authorities were told.

The coroner's jury also ruled that the shooting death of Patrick Brown of Venice June 25 was the result of suicide.

Bow hunting targets are deer and bears

By ART SCHUMANN

It's time to get serious about preparations for the upcoming hunting season, and area bow hunters are starting to hit their targets with more authority.

By now, all their gear has been put in readiness and it's a case of practice and more practice to gain the accuracy they want before taking the field once the bow-hunting season opens.

Although the Illinois bow season for deer won't open until Oct. 1, many area bow hunters head for Michigan or Wisconsin in September to hunt deer and bear.

Some bow hunters traditionally hunt in both states each fall. Both Michigan and Wisconsin offer an archery deer season about three months long. This allows the bow hunter to make several trips north during the season in an attempt to bag his deer.

Latest surveys indicate that Michigan and Wisconsin have excellent deer and black bear populations this year. With the bow season extending over three months in both states, hunters have the opportunity to bow hunt under varied conditions.

In September the vegetation is thick, the weather is usually warm and the deer are well-scattered. By mid-October there have been frosts in the north country and the heavy foliage has begun to fall to the forest floor. It's then that the deer move from the hardwood stands to the pine plantations for cover.

In early November through December conditions are different. In November the annual rut occurs and deer can be found most anywhere. It's then that the bucks come out of hiding.

Early November is the best time for the bow hunter to get a shot at a trophy buck. By December the gun season for the deer is over, a large number of deer have been harvested and those that remain are widely scattered and have retreated to the heaviest cover.

By December, the northern counties of Michigan and Wisconsin usually have a deep blanket of snow. Deer retreat to areas of cover offering a food supply nearby.

Bow hunters using snowshoes who concentrate on such areas have a good chance of bagging their deer. The soft powdery December snow is ideal for snowshoe travel and the hunter who wears them can move almost silently.

During the summer months the deer of the north have a thin coat of reddish-brown tinted hair. In winter their coat grows long and turns gray.

There's no doubt that the three-month bow season for deer in both Michigan and Wisconsin offers a great range in variety of hunting. For that reason many of our area's bow hunters take full advantage of it. While some bow hunters camp out or stay at resorts near their favorite hunting areas up north, others prefer to hunt with a veteran guide who knows the country and the movements of the deer herd year round.

One of the best hunting guides we know of up north is Art Laha of Winchester, Wis. Art is one of the nation's foremost bow hunters and accomplished big-game hunters. He has traveled from Alaska to Africa to hunt big game. During the early Wisconsin bow season for deer he operates a deer hunter's camp offering lodging, meals, transportation and guide service for bow hunters. Details on Art's bow hunts for deer can be obtained by writing Art Laha, Winchester, Wis. 54567.

Those interested in bow hunting for black bear in Wisconsin might write Jim Lambert at Arrowhead Resort, Mercer, Wis. Jim offers bow hunts for bear from baited stands. He guarantees his hunters will see bear within good bow range.

Jim's baited stands are located in Iron County, which offers a fine bear population. Iron County runs a close second to Bayfield County each year in the number of bears harvested.

Each year the sport of bow hunting is gaining in popularity as more sportsmen begin to realize its potential. Today's bows and arrows are better than ever. The development of the compound bow has done much to attract more sportsmen to bow hunting in recent years.

It's a sport in which the entire family can participate. Bow hunting for big game has its limitations to be sure. An arrow does not have the range of a bullet. An arrow kills by hemorrhage, while a bullet kills by shock.

The bow hunter must get closer to his quarry than the gun hunter, but this is not necessarily a disadvantage. The bow hunter has to do his homework well. He must not only learn to use his weapon well, but he must know every possible thing he can about the game he plans to hunt.

There is much less danger in the field during the bow hunting season and hunters are much fewer and farther between. Bow hunting has advantages as well as disadvantages. Hunters must weigh both carefully before choosing the method of hunting best suited to them. However, there is a great deal of satisfaction in harvesting a deer with a bow than with a gun; it takes that much more doing. At least that's the opinion of the vast majority of hunters we have talked to who have hunted deer by both methods.

FIRST-PLACE TROPHY is displayed by Helena Langley, 17. She won it during the weekend at the Mid-America Music Festival held in Topeka, Kan. She received the top virtuoso trophy Saturday evening after being judged by two judges with an average score of 99 percent. She competed in the bass guitar segment of the annual music festival, in which there were 1,200 entrants. Miss Langley has been studying the bass guitar for one and one-half years and teaches at the National Schools of Music in Granite City and Collinsville. She will begin the fall semester at Granite City South as a senior.

State school funds may increase here

By MICK STRANGE
Press-Record Staff Writer

With the signing of a new school aid bill Monday by Illinois Governor James R. Thompson, Illinois schools will receive an additional $70 million from the new state aid formula, giving the schools a record $1.6 billion in school aid.

Local school administrators voiced approval of the new formula, which raises the basic state-and-local expenditure for each pupil from $1,280 to $1,293.

Superintendent Robert Vickers, of Venice said the Venice district received $71,140 in state aid for 1977-78, and he expects this to be increased to about $108,000.

Superintendent John Falchiff of Madison said the Madison school district for 1977-78 received $2,100,000 and he is anticipating this will increase by about $50,000.

Assistant Superintendent Frank Kraus of the Granite City district said, "For 1977-78 year, the district received $9,612,000, but we won't know just what increase we will receive until Aug. 9. It has been estimated by some that the increase may amount to around $373,000, but from this $195,000 will be deducted as we were overpaid this year. And there are other factors that make us believe the increase will be less than the estimate.

"Last year, we were paid for a projected student daily attendance average of 12,096. However, at the end of the year the figure was 164 students more per day than actually attended, so this money will be deducted."

Another element that prevents local school authorities from knowing at this time the exact amount the districts will be receiving is the Title I federal program. Title I funds are determined by the number of economically disadvantaged students. Under the new formula, it is estimated that 486 of the state's 1,012 school districts will receive less Title I money than last year.

Factors determining the amount of money received include declining enrollment, increased property assessment, reduced tax rates and over-payments.

In other school action, Gov. Thompson signed a bill requiring public schools to celebrate Memorial Day on the same day as the federal holiday, rather than the traditional May 30.

The state is expecting a $33 million windfall from the federal government, not yet

Route 162 resurfacing

State Representative Everett G. Steele announced today the Illinois Department of Transportation will take bids tomorrow for 2.61 miles of resurfacing on Illinois Route 162 from near the intersection with Illinois Route 203, northeasterly to near Illinois Route 111 in Granite City.

Estimates cost of the project is $530,000, the department said.

Youth escapes from captors

A young man caught inside the van of Sheryl Morton, Columbus, Ohio, in the 1800 block of State Street at 12:20 a.m. today managed to break free and run away before police arrived to arrest him.

A relative of the victim saw someone in the van and notified Mrs. Morton in Doris' Restaurant, 1820 State St.

Mrs. Morton, another woman and a man in the restaurant went to the van and grabbed the youth, who had Mrs. Morton's CB radio and other items in a bag.

The three wrestled the young man to the ground and held him while police were called, but he broke free and ran before officers arrived.

He was described as about 19 years old, freckled, 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds and having curly blond hair over his ears.

Apartment looted

A stereo, a television, a wall clock, a tapestry and a quantity of prescription medication were stolen from the home of Janet Hopkins, 3610 Kirkpatrick Homes, between 8 p.m. Monday and 12:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Entry was gained by removing a window from a door, but a chain latch kept the door from being opened. The door then was forced open, breaking the molding.

A bedroom was ransacked and the medicine was taken from various bottles in dresser drawers.

Nameoki Township law enforcement being assailed

A recent wave of burglary, vandalism and theft in portions of Nameoki Township led Nameoki Supervisor Harold Davis to issue a statement yesterday expressing disappointment with the quality of protection offered in the township by the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

"I am especially disappointed that the Madison County Board will not give the sheriff enough money so he can provide us with adequate protection.

"Something needs to be done here immediately," Davis told the Press-Record.

Asserting that the sheriff's department has kept some incidents "under wraps," Davis said there have been numerous cases in the last week of burglaries, thefts from vehicles and vandalism in Nameoki Township Precincts Three, Five and 11, most occurring between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m.

Minerva Street, Miracle Manor and Norland Estates have been particularly hard hit, Davis said.

He urged township residents to watch their neighborhoods carefully and to call the sheriff's department if they see any suspicious activities.

One resident later told the Press-Record he believes the reported crime wave is an outgrowth of recent criticism of the Nameoki Volunteer Police, which patrols those precincts, and that the number and severity of occurrences is not as major as is being described by some residents.

She received enough votes to be elected to the Nameoki Township Board of Auditors last year but has never been seated due to a court dispute.

Barton cites his past service as a precinct committeeman and district party chairman, and said he also expects considerable Democratic support. He said he will stress opposition to sewer installation financial procedures.

Mid-America Theaters also own and operate Nameoki One and Two.

How not to be penniless widow

By JUDITH G. RHOADES

At least a fourth of all unmarried women over the age 65, a good number of whom are widows, have no assets of any kind. And all too often the widow was not left in that state by her husband but fell into it by badly managing the assets she was left with.

"The wife is completely sheltered by her husband and has no inkling of what is involved in family finances. My husband takes care of money matters; I don't worry about a thing" is commonly heard even though both the husband and wife know there is a good chance that someday she will have to take care of money matters. In a smaller number of cases, these roles may be reversed. The same guidelines discussed below would apply equally to a husband in such a situation.

Every spouse should start to plan ahead, to educate herself (or himself) about the family's financial situation. BANK ACCOUNTS: Do you know where your passbook is kept? The location of your safe deposit box — if any? Whether your accounts are all in joint name or if they are in single-name accounts? Do you have an inventory of the contents of your safe deposit box and of other valuables you may be keeping elsewhere?

Two lists should be made of the contents. If you own real estate, your deed of trust or mortgage papers should be included in that inventory.

Keep one list in your safe deposit box. When these steps have been taken, sit down and write a letter to a close friend or your lawyer or insurance agent, informing him of the location of your safe deposit box with a copy of the inventory, and the location of your bank account. On the envelope, state that this letter is to be opened only in the event of your death.

INSURANCE: A most important problem area is insurance. Talk about your insurance with your broker. Determine whether his coverage is adequate. One rule of thumb is that insurance should be 10 times the annual income needed to live without working.

Statistics show that two-thirds of the proceeds from an insurance settlement are dissipated after three years.

Let's capitalize all the areas that have been discussed:

1. Know the location of all accounts and the inventory of your safe deposit box.

4. Find out if you are properly provided for in pension plans.
5. Know the names of your registered representative and the brokerage firm that has been executing transactions for your husband.

To prevent this from happening to you, remember that insurance proceeds should not be used to pay off current debts, but should be used to allow the surviving family members to continue to live a normal life without the husband's support.

THE LAWYER: Wives frequently do not know their husband's lawyer. Yet when the husband dies the lawyer can be more important than any other advisor. A woman should be just as well acquainted with the lawyer as the husband. Husband and wife should each have a will, which has been kept up to date. If both you and your husband should die in a common disaster, the will should indicate who you want as your children's guardians, if they are minors. The question of guardianship should be discussed beforehand with the people whom you have designated as guardians. No one would wish to create an excessive financial burden on your children, so proper financial arrangements should also be considered.

PENSION PLANS: Are you entitled to benefits under the pension plan of your husband? If there is a survivor's option, has it been exercised? If the husband is entitled to group insurance, will the beneficiary be entitled to anything if he dies after retirement? You should know what benefits you are entitled to, through your husband's employer.

SECURITIES: If you and your husband own securities, find out how they are registered. Does your husband purchase securities in his name alone, or is your name on the certificates as well?

In settling the estate, if there are only a few odd lots (less than 100 shares of any issue of stock) that need a name change, it is probably easier for you to write to the transfer agent and ask for the shares to be transferred to your name. Although requirements vary from state to state, you generally will need a copy of the death certificate for each company in which you hold shares. In most cases, any New York Stock Exchange firm should make available for your convenience all necessary papers and documents. If you hold the stock certificates, or if the certificates are held in street name — that is, kept for you by the brokerage house and registered in its name — transfer procedures may vary. As with the lawyer, you should know the name of the registered representative and the brokerage house that has been executing transactions for your husband.

Building renovations and needs studied by schools

By DONNA HARTWICK
 Press-Record Staff Writer

The Granite City Board of Education discussed at length Tuesday night the possibility of placing a bond issue before the public to accomplish needed repair work on existing buildings, build additions where needed, provide new construction and improve the presentation of certain courses in the curriculum.

A report submitted by B. J. Davis, superintendent of schools, said the building fund in the district has not been used to provide for providing sufficient funds for major renovations to the buildings.

He added, "With mounting inflation, we find our maintenance program falling far behind."

"If this trend is not reversed, we will soon find the district with buildings in desperate need for repairs, and the cost and extent of the repairs and additions far beyond our reach."

"I am of the opinion that the situation of the district at this time is such that a favorable reaction is feasible to such an issue."

"It has been 10 years since the board has put forward a bond issue, and the board has been true to the promises it made during the 1968 bond issue and tax referendum campaign."

"The bonds will be paid off on schedule, and the increased tax rates were not applied until needed — with the last being applied in 1972."

"It is also important to note that during this next year, the school district will be levying bonds to pay off all outstanding bonds."

"The district will, in effect, have paid for all of its buildings. If a bond issue is presented and if the public approves the issue, it would not increase the tax rate in the bond and interest fund over that presently being levied," said Davis.

Nearly all the school buildings in the district are in need of some type of repair, it was related.

Needed maintenance listed includes boiler temperature controls, roof repairs, tuck-pointing and waterproofing, stationary fire extinguishers in kitchens, and work on floors and ceilings.

In regard to new construction, board members are still considering a new automotive shop, horticulture buildings and grounds and a gym-auditorium complex, all at North High School, as a future goal.

Also being considered is enlarging the cafeteria and perhaps adding classrooms, depending on the future use of Washington School. Installation of burglar alarms in all buildings not presently equipped with them and energy conservation measures for all buildings are being studied.

Board members agreed that with limited funds available at the present time, a priority list of repairs will be compiled, with estimates made of the costs.

If a project is extensive enough, the board decided, the superintendent may secure an architectural and mechanical engineering firm to help prepare an estimate of the cost.

By proceeding cautiously, the board members said, it may be possible to complete the most needed repairs with available money, later considering other funding to complete the list of improvements.

Arboretum scene of wildlife

By JIM PODGERS
 LISLE — The Morton Arboretum takes its role as a nature preserve very seriously.

Even dandelions are allowed to grow wild throughout the 1,300-acre arboretum just north of the intersection of Illinois 53 and the East-West Tollway.

The Morton Arboretum's purpose is not to manicure but to maintain plant life for visitors to walk and drive through and observe, says Carol Doty, a member of the arboretum staff.

Arboretum officials make it clear the area is a botanical garden and not a park.

"There is a difference," Doty said. "People seem to associate parks with baseball fields and picnics."

While active park recreation is important, it also is important to maintain places where the emphasis is on observing plant life that is allowed to grow in as natural a state as possible, according to arboretum officials.

This idea is mirrored in the motto on the arboretum's official flag, "Plant trees."

The arboretum was established in 1922 by Joy Morton, founder of the Morton Salt Co., on the grounds of his estate near Lisle.

He was the son of J. Sterling Morton, a Nebraska statesman who originated Arbor Day.

Joy Morton started buying land near his estate in 1906 before establishing the arboretum "as kind of a retirement project," Doty said.

Looking out over expanses of groves, fields and small lakes, she said, "A great deal of what you see now grew in the last 50 years."

The arboretum has become as island of green, quiet groves and fields packed with shrubs and trees. Several miles of roads take visitors past groves of linden, hackberry, mulberry, crabapple, ash and magnolia trees and fields full of blooming bluebell, daffodils and other flowers. The area is a favorite home for birds, ducks and geese.

On any day there are groups of schoolchildren, photographers, painters, bird watchers and just plain walking enthusiasts wandering through the gardens.

The arboretum tried to allow bicycles a few years ago, but now prohibits them because of damage to the plant life, Doty said.

Although the arboretum makes an ideal haven for wild animals, even they too must take a back seat to the plant life when they threaten it.

The arboretum also faces manmade threats. They are reflected in the distant noise of highway traffic heard even in the deepest recesses of the gardens.

The noise, exhaust fumes and winter road salt cause damage to plant life. A proposed north-south highway would cut through the east end of the arboretum, including its only natural lake.

If we did anything even resembling lobbying, we would lose our tax-free status," Ms. Doty said. "And believe me, if we lost our tax-free status this place would be one big housing project."

Opposition to such projects must "come from friends, not us."

The arboretum also is a working research facility. It is trying to develop a hybrid elm tree that will have the full shape that makes elms popular, but that won't be susceptible to the Dutch Elm disease.

Another important project is prairie restoration at the far west edge of the complex. In the project, seeds are being collected from the few virgin prairie areas in the state in hopes of developing a replica of the open prairies that once dominated Illinois.

The arboretum also offers nature classes.

COOKING CORNER

Some good Scout recipes for campers

By MARJORIE RICE

As many a camper cook will tell you, a Dutch oven goes a long way to taking the rough out of roughing it.

In an age of food processors, crockery, slow cookers, electric skillets and toaster ovens, this good old standby still can't be beat for cooking over the coals.

It's a skillet. A biscuit oven. A stew pot. A chafin. And it can make the most inexperienced of cooks look good.

With a bed of flowing coals — not too many, maybe 25 or 30 — a Dutch oven can bake bread and biscuits, or simmer a stew to perfection.

Add to the oven a good cast-iron skillet and tin coffee pot, and you have practically all the pans you need for camp cooking. (This, obviously, is not for backpackers.)

For advice on Dutch oven cooking, I turned to Bill Hines, a Scoutmaster who has been teaching his troops some camp cooking basics.

He advises campers to use a Dutch oven designed for camp cooking. The lids are flat, with a wide lip that holds coals on top of the pan, heating the air inside the pan for proper baking.

Three small legs raise the oven up a bit from the coals. There are sturdy handles for lifting. The ovens, simple cake pans and heavy-duty pliers to lift them are the only cooking utensils you need.

A roll of foil, tree branches and a coat hanger are the materials for disposable "frying pans" to go with the Dutch oven.

Make a loop from a willow switch, wrapping the stem up around the stem and securing with string. Leave enough stem to form a handle. Mold heavy-duty foil around the loop for a frying pan.

Mold heavy-duty foil around two forks of a tree branch, wrapping double for strength.

Or bend a coat hanger into a diamond, and wrap in heavy foil. Be sure to use a padded mitt when handling the hanger "pan."

Place Dutch oven directly on coals and add a little oil or shortening. Brown brisket well on all sides, uncovered. Add water to almost cover. (You could use tomato juice, beef stock, a little white mixed with water, or plain water.)

Remove meat from cooking juices and wrap in foil to keep warm. Add macaroni to cooking juices and place oven directly on hot coals. Boil until tender (about 20 minutes), uncovered. Slice beef and serve with horseradish.

SCOUT PORK CHOPS
 8 pork chops
 2 tps. oil
 1 can cream of mushroom soup
 1 tsp. salt

Place oven directly on coals and add oil. Brown pork chops, uncovered. Add soup and salt and cook, covered, about 30 minutes, until chops are tender. Cut-up potatoes, carrots and onions may be added with the soup.

Dutch oven stew can be as simple as cubed beef simmered with a can of mushroom soup. Or, you can dress it up a bit.

DUTCH OVEN STEW
 3 lbs. stew beef
 Oil
 1 tsp. salt
 1 cup water
 3 to 5 carrots, sliced
 1 or 2 medium onions, chopped
 3 to 5 medium potatoes, cubed
 Parsley
 Pepper

Place Dutch oven on coals and add oil. Brown beef cubes, uncovered. Add salt, pepper and water and cover. Simmer, about 30 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and cook another hour, or until vegetables are done and meat is tender. Add water if necessary to keep about 1 inch of liquid in the pan.

The stew can be covered with dumplings made from biscuit mix, according to package directions. Be sure the stew is bubbling hot, and drop dumplings by the spoonful on the stew. Cover, put coals on the Dutch oven lid and cook about 30 minutes, until dumplings are cooked through.

Biscuits, from a can or packaged mix, also can be used to top stew, following the same directions as for dumplings.

about 30 volunteers — teenagers to grandmothers.

The instructors received a week of training prior to the start of the lessons. Sponsor is the Tri-City Chapter of the American National Red Cross.

While not all become adept swimmers, all the students make considerable progress, the staff members say. Even a boy confined to a wheelchair has learned to enjoy diving off a diving board.

The Caseyville resident also has been active here and in a nine-county region in coordinating "Olympics" competition for the handicapped.

Events include bowling at St. Clair Bowl in Belleville, swimming at the Edwardsville YMCA, and track and field contests at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Top competitors advance to state competition at Illinois State University in Normal and at Soldiers Field in Chicago. Miss Higgins has coached "special Olympics" delegations that have gone to the state meet for the past three years. Her philosophy is that "as long as there are handicapped persons, we should do all we can to help them be mobile. Walking and other physical activities aid their lung expansion and general health. Many who are in wheel chairs or are otherwise disabled can be much more active than you might think."

Some youngsters have been active in both the Olympics and the swimming classes.

Teenagers and young adults who are being recognized for their role as swimming teachers include:

Four years — George Wilkins, Edith Woods, Robert Lutes, Marian Hartung and Linda Walsh.

Three and a half years — Terry Hunter.

One year — Jennifer Boone, Monica McAmish, Joni Vance, Tom Walsh and Rich Werth.

Also working as volunteers have been Mary Jesse, Ron Laboray and Pat McAmish, four years; Nan Henderson, three years; Lois Winter, two years; and Georgia Miller and Marilyn Wilson, one year.

cement masons, carpenters and operating engineers. He said laborers are seeking a 24 percent hike, or three percent more than the raise for other unions. Roland Bruning, laborer district business manager, said the previous contract lists wages and benefits of $11.05 an hour. Contractors have been seeking to pay time-and-a-half overtime instead of double-time, but the laborers do not favor such a change.

Counties affected are Madison, St. Clair, Monroe, Bond, Calhoun, Clinton, Greene, Jersey, Macoupin, Montgomery, Randolph and Washington.

Mrs. Sappington, 57, dies

Mrs. Ruby (Lessman) Sappington, 57, of 2146 Adams St., Ill. for three months, died at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she had been a patient for one week.

Born in Venice, Ill., Mrs. Sappington resided in Granite City for 50 years.

Survivors include her husband, Vernon Sappington; one son, Richard Sappington of Granite City; a brother, Gordon Routh, Mitchell; and one sister, Mrs. Doris Carlton, Sunnyside, Calif.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Rest before you get tired

By REV. W. LEE TRULMAN

Bob Bosser is a bright-eyed medical student who would make a good missionary because he has the zeal of his beliefs.

Bob shook his finger in my face for an hour with some very convincing arguments that fatigue lowers physical resistance to any of a hundred diseases including the common cold. Working the hours I work I can soon expect to catch something or other and no sympathy would be coming forth from him because I have been warned in capital letters.

Let me take this fact that applies to everyone and push it to the next level.

Psychiatrists and counselors have long known that fatigue lowers resistance to illness and also to the destructive, negative emotions such as fear, anger or worry.

When you are careful about your fatigue level, you are practicing good mental health by cutting down on the gray or black emotions fostered by fatigue.

How do you prevent fatigue? The first rule I learned is to rest often and to rest before you get tired. Fatigue accumulates and builds up with astonishing rapidity.

The armed forces know that men can march farther and hold up longer if they put down their packs and rest 10 minutes out of every hour. The U.S. Cavalry found that if they walked their horses every hour, they could ride the horses farther.

Your heart is just as smart and for the same reasons. Your heart pumps enough blood through your body to fill an average size living room each day. It exerts enough energy every day to move 15 tons of cement blocks onto a platform five feet high. It does this unbelievable amount of work every day for your lifetime.

How does it stand up? Dr. William G. Cooper of Michigan Medical School explains it: "People think that the heart is working continuously. In fact it has a definite rest period during each contraction. When the heart is beating 75 pulses per minute, it is actually only working 9.5 hours out of 24. The fact is that it has a full rest period of 14.5 hours per day."

There is so much recovery power in a few minutes of rest that even a 10-minute nap will give a new lease on energy.

Henry Ford's famous line when he was interviewed on his 80th birthday: "The secret of my energy is that I never stand up when I can sit down. I never sit down when I can lie down."

The majority of the people I see in counseling are persons who are having problems with worry, tension, despair and all the other emotional illnesses that human flesh is heir to. The common factor is that of extreme fatigue.

You feel you are the exception because you cannot stretch out on the couch while discussing a production or a book? But if you just might be that if you take your lunch right, you might be able to take a 10-minute nap afterwards.

If you are unable to take a nap at noon, maybe you can lie down for 15 to 30 minutes before the evening meal. It's cheaper than a cocktail, and it will give you a longer day.

You can catch a nap before the evening meal and subtract it from your night's sleep. Total sleep will do you more good than lying in bed for the same amount of time in one unbroken stretch.

Rest before you get tired. Plan your rest and give your body a break. Learn what your heart learned a long time ago, and that is to take your rest periodically, and you'll get a great deal more and achieve a great deal more. You have a better frame of mind while you are doing it.

Sanitary district still in money bind

The Metro-East Sanitary District Board of Trustees met yesterday to discuss the district's financial situation, but no answers to the problems were found during the meeting.

The district has borrowed its legal limit by selling $600,000 in tax anticipation warrants and all new tax funds now being received must be used to repay the warrants.

The board approved several vouchers, but they were not paid until the warrants are repaid, probably in October, it was concluded.

The district has been unable to pay any claims for the past three months, but has continued to meet its payroll.

The trustees also discussed a problem with an easement they would like to grant the Madison County special sewer committee for construction of sanitary sewers in this area, but noted the levee district obtained the easement in 1911 with the stipulation the property be used for levee purposes only.

The easement issue was turned over to one of the district's attorneys for study and a recommendation.

Arrests in park

Warrants charging three counts each of flourishing a dangerous weapon and carrying a dangerous weapon have been applied for by St. Louis police against Michael Ellsworth, 25, of 3029 Iowa St., Granite City, and U.S. Army Sgt. Philip Rodriguez, 26, of East St. Louis, in connection with an incident in Forest Park, St. Louis, at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday.

St. Louis Police Sgt. Larry Williams and Officer Ronald Stenseth, both of the Second District, went to the 600 block of Government Drive in Forest Park after a citizen reported two men were stopping and searching persons traveling through the park.

Officers arrested both men but fully loaded 38-caliber weapons in their possession and were impersonating government agents.

Michael Northwinski, 18, Donald Tallent, 22, and Daniel Ellis, 18, all of St. Louis, were among those halted by the twosome.

Ellsworth and Rodriguez remain in custody today in St. Louis.

Books—from evolution to the family

JANUS: by Arthur Koestler; Random House; 354 pages; $10. In this rather grim book Koestler looks at evolution in an attempt to define the human condition and, eventually, runs up against the stonewall of the unknown. Materialism, says, no longer exists because of the discovery of modern physics that matter is not "solid" but instead is apparently in constant motion at the sub-atomic level. And does the "law" of probability exist?

It apparently does, although trying to explain why is an intellectual in a futile, an intellectual of the highest order, Koestler raises these and other points in an engaging study of man's existence.

THE PREDATORS; by Irene Cohen; Putnam; 160 pages; $14.95. This is one of those gorgeous, king-sized books filled with outstanding color photos of animals in action.

As the title implies, Cohen concentrates on the endless quest for food of predators and, as a result, some of the photos may be unsettling for those who are squeamish. But for those interested in photography this is a book of endless fascination — filled with wonderment about how some of the photos were obtained. It's an awesome spectacle.

WEBSTER'S STUDENTS THESAURUS; edited by Kathleen Doherty; Merriam; 512 pages; $7.95. An invaluable aid for junior and senior high school students seeking to develop vocabulary and writing skills, the thesaurus contains more than 43,000 synonyms, antonyms, idiomatic phrases, related words (near synonyms) and contrasted words (near antonyms). All main entries have a "meaning core," a concise definition showing exactly in which meaning a group of words are considered synonymous. If your child's vocabulary consists mainly of "you know," this book may help.

STORIES AND FABLES OF AMBROSE BIERCE; selected by Edward Wagenknecht and illustrated by Ferne Street; Stimmer House; 343 pages; $7.95 (softcover). "Bitter Bierce" writes in a manner that is timeless, although he himself was born in 1842 and vanished in Mexico in 1913, never to be seen again.

Bierce had little faith in the human race and his writings about venal and corrupt people were both brilliant and corrosive. Bierce is best known for the "Devil's Dictionary," but his sardonic wit also is well displayed in this collection.

MY EIGHT PRESIDENTS; by Sam McClendon; Wyden Books; 239 pages; $10. Sarah has been attending presidential press conferences since the Franklin D. Roosevelt era, much to the discomfort of White House occupants. A veteran White House correspondent, Sarah was a brash questioner. She once began a question to President Nixon in this manner: "I don't think you're fully informed about some of the things that are happening in the government in a domestic way."

She infuriated President Eisenhower many times, especially when she challenged his dispatch of troops to Lebanon. Sarah is an American original.

TIME IN ITS FLIGHT; by Susan Fromberg Schaeffer; Doubleday; 782 pages; $12.95. This is one of those wide-screen studies of an American family that is rich in the feel and fabric of time gone by. It begins with the marriage of Edna Dickinson and Dr. John Steele and Park after a citizen reported two men were stopping and searching persons traveling through the park.

Officers arrested both men but fully loaded 38-caliber weapons in their possession and were impersonating government agents.

Michael Northwinski, 18, Donald Tallent, 22, and Daniel Ellis, 18, all of St. Louis, were among those halted by the twosome.

Ellsworth and Rodriguez remain in custody today in St. Louis.

Michael S. Singer, 23, of 38 Victoria Drive, Pontoon Beach, has been released on his own recognizance on charges stemming from an incident Friday in which he allegedly was chased by police of several departments and struggled with officers, injuring one deputy.

Deputy Danny Spies reported seeing a light green pickup truck strike the parked cars of two deputies in the 100 block of Hillsboro Avenue and then leave Edwardsville on Route 157.

Deputies searched for the truck and found it parked in the front yard of a home near Elsie's Lounge on Old Route 66. Officers converged on the lounge and found Edwardsville Policeman Gary Doyle had Singer in custody.

He was handcuffed and taken to the Madison County Jail, where he suffered a cut to his nose which officers said occurred when he tripped and fell on stairs.

It was alleged Singer grabbed Deputy Spies and pushed him against a door, causing a pulled muscle in Spies' back.

Singer was charged by deputies with resisting arrest and battery, and Edwardsville police charged him with driving under the influence of liquor, failure to have valid registration and leaving the scene of an accident.

He was released on his own recognizance and was taken to Oliver C. Anderson Hospital, where three sutures were administered to close the cut to his face and he was released.

News notes

The St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority said yesterday Senator Thomas Eagleton's quoting of President Carter as opposing an Illinois metropolitan airport indicates Mr. Carter may not have been fully briefed on rapid changes in this area. "He advocated total deregulation of airlines and the easing of regulations already has produced travel loads that are pressing Lambert to its limits. There is no way it can be expanded to handle the anticipated surge that will come with full deregulation," the SLMAAA said.

Chokila Mounds Day will be observed Saturday at the state historic site on Highway 40 near Collinsville, with artifacts displayed, excavation tours conducted and animal wrestling and cooking demonstrated.

Gov. James R. Thompson on Tuesday tentatively approved a property tax relief bill, amending it to change the exempt portion from $1,000 to $1,500 and the effective date from 1980 to 1979.

Contempt hearing set for Aug. 22

Former board members of the Holy Trinity Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church in Madison are scheduled to appear in court Tuesday, Aug. 22, at 9 a.m. in Edwardsville before Associate Circuit Judge George Moran Jr. to show why they should not be held in contempt of court for refusing a court order to turn over records and bank assets to a new board elected at a congregational meeting July 23.

Attorney James Ratcliffe, representing the old board filed a motion Wednesday for a change of venue, saying Associate Judge P. J. O'Neill may be prejudiced, O'Neill on Wednesday granted the motion and set the new date.

Nick D. Vanilleff attorney for the new board, said today he is filing notices to compel the former board to appear at the hearing.

The contempt hearing has been brought about by alleged refusal to comply with a Circuit Court ruling to turn over all properties, keys, bank accounts and church records.

The former board allegedly has opened a bank account with a Belleville bank and is alleged to be holding some church documents and records. Spokesmen for the old board have declined to comment.

The new board elected by the congregation is now in control of church activities and the regular bank accounts, and is operating state-sanctioned bingo games at Trinity Hall.

The former board members, defendants in the contempt hearing, have filed suit challenging the right of the new board to function.

Vanilleff said he is filing another suit, with the new board as plaintiffs and naming the Belleville National Savings Bank as the defendant, over a newly-opened account.

The dispute began this year when the board headed by Constantine Michaeloff Jr., tried to fire the Rev. Peter Stamboljiev in a dispute over the administration of church business and funds.

On Tuesday, the Fifth District Appellate Court at Mount Vernon refused to overrule Judge O'Neill's orders directing the former board members to turn over all records, property and bank accounts to the new board.

Tiny insects like state corn crop

By JOAN MURARO

I doubt that I shall ever see
A nematode appeal to me;
In fact because they are so small,
You can't see nematodes at all.

Don't let that reassure you,
The little blighters, we're being told by experts, are out there all right and doing their best — or worst — to reduce the Illinois corn crop.

Bad news, it seems, never comes singly.

First it was egg and bacon, red dye 10, then fast-food hamburgers and charbroiled steaks that were going to do us in.

Then they warned us this is going to be a really bad year for mosquitoes (which can carry forms of encephalitis) and ticks, which can carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Now they tell us we not only have cyst nematodes in Illinois soybeans; there are nematodes in our corn.

If the corn nematodes have been overlooked in Illinois for hundreds of years, as it now seems, it's hardly surprising. The two major types found so far in the state range from a teeny one-sixteenth inch in length to a ridiculously small one-fiftieth of an inch.

If you put all the corn nematodes in the state end to end, you should take up a hobby; you've got too much idle time on your hands.

Just because the corn nematode is small doesn't mean he can be ignored. Remember what the small darter just did to the TV dam?

Recognizing that a good, or bad, outbreak of corn nematodes can reduce crop yields by as much as half, a group of experts who are called what else? nematologists, recently gathered in Springfield to look at the problem, if not the nematodes.

The Midwest Corn Nematode Conference (not to be confused with the hamburger Omelette Conference of a few years ago) was recently held in Springfield. It was sponsored by a farm chemical company which makes, of course, nematocides.

One conclusion they reportedly reached was that they don't know how widespread the problem is in the state.

One thing they DO know. The corn nematode does everything on a microscopic scale. Its lifespan is only three to six weeks.

If you think your cornfield has a nematode infestation (nematosis?) the nematologists suggest you treat a small part of the field with nematocides.

If the treated section responds by producing a dramatically higher yield than the non-treated areas, it's time to call in the professional nematologist. If you can't pronounce nematologist, what you call him is up to you.

Andrew Sahaida, musician, dies

Andrew A. Sahaida Jr., St. Louis, a musician professionally known as Andy Sahaida, died at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at Alexian Brothers Hospital, St. Louis.

He had played the saxophone with a musical group for seven years at Pete and Mary's Tavern, 349 Lincoln Ave., until two months ago, when he became ill.

Mr. Sahaida was a gold card member of Musicians Local 1-197 and also Local 47 of Los Angeles.

Survivors include two brothers, George W. and Joseph

R. Sahaida, and a sister, Marie R. Sahaida, all of St. Louis.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 5, at the Church of Magdalene. Burial will be in Resurrection Cemetery.

Mrs. Dillman dies at 76

Mrs. Thelma Mae Dillman, 76, formerly of 2533 Stratford Lane, a retired licensed practical nurse, died at 6:05 a.m. Wednesday at Oliver C. Anderson Hospital, Maryville.

She had resided at the Edwardsville Care Center for three years and was a patient at the hospital one day.

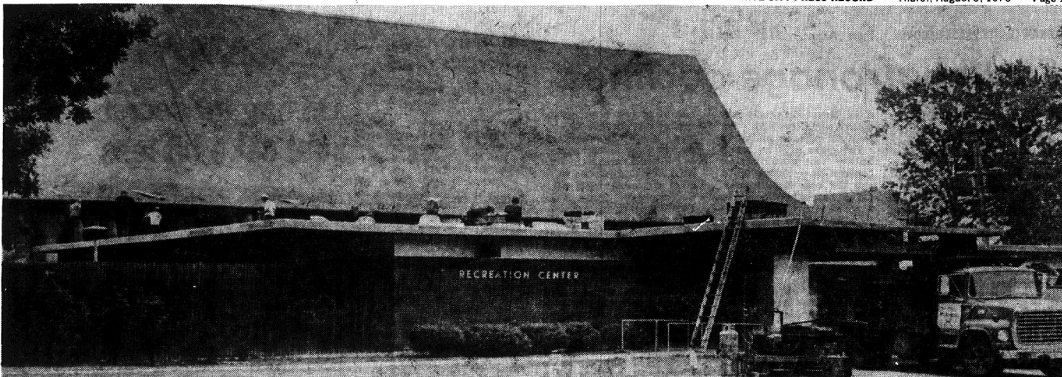

Mrs. Dillman was born in Bowling Green, Ohio, and has lived in Deeto, Mo., prior to moving to Granite City two years ago.

Survivors include her husband, Ernest J. Dillman of Edwardsville; three sons, Craig Dillman of Florissant, Mo., Bobby Dillman, DeQuincy, La., and Merle Dillman, Ona, Neb.; three daughters, Mrs. Berica Hall, Livingston, Mont., Mrs. Thelma Koglin, Granite City, and Mrs. Willa Lee Kepley, Asheville, N.C.; 18 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren; and a brother, Floris Speaker, Lompoc, Calif.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

CYCLE STOLEN, FOUND

The motorcycle of Virginia Holik, 1628 Cleveland Blvd., stolen from her home between 1 and 6:10 a.m. Wednesday, was found abandoned in the 1200 block of Marshall Avenue at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday.

NEW ROOF FOR PARK STRUCTURE. Workers are shown this week resurfacing the roof of the one-story section of the recreation center rink building located at Wilson Park. Hallucinating, invades home

No charges have been filed against a 23-year-old man who suffered an adverse reaction to prescription medication and broke into the home of Judy Burt, 3115 Rodger Ave., at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Burt was in her living room with her children when the front door flew open and a man from the neighborhood ran in, shouting obscenities and carrying a rifle.

She and her children ran to a bedroom and locked the door, but the man kicked on the door. She heard a click like a gun being cocked, so she jumped out the bedroom window and ran to a neighbor's house to call police and get help.

Officers found the man sitting in the living room with a toy plastic rifle. He said he was apologizing for his behavior and had been hallucinating after taking a prescription medication. The man was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

State patronage declines

By AL MANNING
SPRINGFIELD—One of the emerging political issues in the country is the relationship between the government and the governmental employees.

According to Robert Teeter of Market Opinion Research—the firm which does polling for Gov. James Thompson, Sen. Charles Percy and others—the voters are concerned about the competence of public employees.

The popular term used in a derogatory sense against public employees is bureaucrats.

Many people, including those in government, think bureaucrats are running the government.

They also think it is impossible to fire any of these bureaucrats, regardless of how incompetent they perform their duties.

Bob Kjellander, Thompson's new patronage chief, has begun meeting with cabinet directors and patronage directors of the various departments on an individual basis.

One official involved in the matter thinks this is a Thompson attack on the bureaucrats. He interpreted remarks to mean the governor thinks bureaucrats are running the government and wants to change it.

Kjellander says that interpretation is incorrect. The governor is concerned about bringing more Thompson people into government," he said. "We want to expedite matters."

Thompson says he wants better communication between the patronage office and the code departments.

The political people want to move faster on patronage jobs, and at the same time some directors complain they face unnecessary delays in hiring needed employees because of the governor's hiring freeze.

One of Kjellander's responsibilities is to bring the two sides together and make it a more efficient operation.

In political terms, Thompson has attempted to form an image of shaking up the established bureaucrats.

While campaigning for governor he often talked about government reorganization. In office he has done little reorganizing.

But he still attempts on occasion to draw a line between his front-office staff and his cabinet directors.

When an unfavorable event happens with the Prison Review Board, for example, he'll assign a front-office staffer to handle the emergency and pretend the Prison Review Board is not even under the jurisdiction of the governor.

To hear some Republican county chairman talk about patronage, Thompson doesn't know he has control over the employees in the code departments.

But they know that patronage has been on the decline this decade.

In state government, patronage probably peaked in 1970 when Democrats were fired and Republicans hired on a wholesale basis after Secretary of State Paul Powell's death.

Thompson says the number of patronage employees under Gov. Richard Ogilvie amounted to 16 percent, while they total only two percent in his administration.

One reason for the decline is court orders which prevent the dismissal of rank-and-file government employees for political purposes.

Another reason is the increased power of public employee unions, and the implementation of collective bargaining.

Also, Thompson has refused to support the civil service system by firing Democrats and replacing them with loyal Republicans.

President Carter is aware of the growing importance of public employees as a political issue. That's one reason he's suggesting reforms in the federal civil service procedures.

Man injured, charges filed

Responding to a call that a fight was in progress in the 3300 block of Kirkpatrick Homes at 5:55 p.m. Tuesday, officers found that the alleged combatants had left the area—one on foot and three in a vehicle—when they arrived.

Officers located James M. Shumate, 22, of 2000 block of Alton Ave., Madison, walking in the 2800 block of Palmer Avenue.

The man was bleeding from the lower back and shoulders and was taken by police for hospital care. He was treated for cuts to the left leg and left foot and then was released to police custody.

James M. Shumate was being held Wednesday in the Granite City Jail on warrants issued in 1977 for alleged failure to pay fines relating to charges of possession of alcohol and criminal trespass to a motor vehicle.

AMA health and safety tips

Dieting no secret—just eat a bit less

Everyone needs proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals in the daily diet. Without them, the body can't function efficiently and health may be endangered.

A pamphlet of the American Medical Association points out that the secret to a successful reducing diet is not a dramatic shake-up in your eating habits—it's just a little bit less of everything.

Of course, if you want to lose weight, there are some extravaganzas you can't afford, like whipped cream-topped chocolate double-dip sundaes. Discretion and common sense are the better part of dieting.

Crash diets usually are not recommended. You can and probably will lose weight, but you won't get all the nutrients you need to stay healthy. And you certainly cannot stay on a bizarre crash diet the rest of your life. When you resume normal eating patterns, the fat creeps back. An adjustment of the regular lifestyle of eating is the only effective weight control program in the long run.

Immunizations halt many killer diseases

Immunization is a priceless health asset. Vaccines to prevent smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and typhoid fever have been available for many years. Whooping cough, polio and "flu" vaccines were later added to the list. And most recently we added vaccines to protect against measles, German measles and mumps.

Immunization produces such a light form of a disease that the body reacts against it without becoming sick. This is called active immunity. Passive immunity is acquired from injections of protective substances produced in the body of an animal or another person. Infants receive passive immunity from their mothers against most common infectious diseases.

Formula can help find calorie need

Do you need to lose weight? If you do, you are not alone. One out of every five Americans is totting more pounds than he or she should, says a pamphlet from the American Medical Association.

And you can forget all of the books and magazine articles about losing weight without dieting. The only way to take in your belt or slip into that pantsuit again is to eat less and exercise more, the AMA points out.

But, no matter how much you exercise, you can't just shake it off. An inescapable exercise is turning your back on food and repeating many times a day the word "no".

First, find out what you should weigh. There are charts that will give you a general idea. Because no two persons are exactly alike, there are no ideal.

absolute weights. But you can find your approximate ideal weight, give or take five or ten pounds.

Calories do count. If you eat more calories than your body needs to maintain its normal activity, the excess is stored in fat. Most people leading moderately active lives need 15 calories per pound of body weight. A 150-pound person can consume food containing no more than 2,250 calories each day—150 x 15 equals 2,250.

If you're above the desired weight, you must consume less than the total calories per day needed to maintain present weight. You needn't go hungry. Just eat more low-calorie foods and shun the gravies, creamed dishes, rich desserts, fried entrees, and liquor. Eat slowly and fill up on carrot sticks, leafy vegetables, radishes, consomes, and most fresh fruits. Get a calorie counter booklet and plan your diet menus around it.

There are approximately 3,500 calories in each stored pound of fat. To lose one pound a week, consume 500 fewer calories each day than if you were already at your desired weight. If you want to lose two pounds each week, cut the calories back by 1,000 each day. It is usually unwise to try to lose more than two pounds per week. If you are more than 10 pounds overweight, see your family doctor before launching any diet—yourself diet.

THE YEAR AND THE CALENDAR

The day, the month, and the year are all based on the motions of astronomical objects. The day is defined as that period of time that it takes the Earth to make one complete rotation on its axis with respect to the Sun.

There are two kinds of months — the sidereal or star month and the synodic month. The sidereal month is about 27 1/3 days in length, and is the period of revolution of the moon about the Earth with respect to the stars. However, as the moon revolves around the Earth, the Earth revolves around the Sun. This means that a little longer time is required for the moon to move from one phase back to the same phase. For example, when the moon, Sun, and Earth are all lined up, the moon is said to be in its new phase. It takes about 29 1/2 days — a synodic month — for all three objects to be aligned again.

There are two kinds of year that are important. The first is the sidereal year, it is 365.256 solar days in length. It is the period of time it takes the Earth to make one revolution around the Sun with respect to the stars. The tropical year is the length of time it takes the Earth to revolve around the Sun with respect to the start of the seasons. It is 365.242199 solar days in length, or 20 minutes and 24 seconds shorter than the sidereal year.

Thus, a day is the result of the rotation of the Earth, a year is the result of the revolution of the Earth around the Sun, and a month is the result of the revolution of the moon around the Earth. (The words "moon" and "month" were originally the same word.) The reason that an accurate calendar is so difficult to devise is that the length of a year, the length of a day, and the length of a month are represented by numbers that are not evenly divisible into each other. Most modern calendars have stopped trying to reconcile the motion of the moon with the year and the day. The moon is thus no longer important in calendar making except for determining a few religious holidays such as Easter.

Our present calendar goes back to the Romans, specifically to Julius Caesar who reformed the earlier Roman lunar calendar to a solar calendar in 46 B.C. The Julian calendar, as it is called, has 12 months and a total of 365 days. Every four years an extra day is added to make up for the approximate one-quarter day in every tropical year. Thus, we have 366 days in every fourth year, which we call leap year. The extra day is added to February.

By the year 1582, the Julian calendar had fallen out of step with the Sun by 10 days because there is slightly less than one-quarter day in every tropical year. Pope Gregory XIII installed another calendar reform by dropping 10 days out of 1582; Oct. 4 became Oct. 15 by papal proclamation. Further, in order to make the calendar and the Sun reasonably coincident, he said that century years evenly divisible by 400 should be leap years. Thus, the year 1600 was a leap year. The century years of 1700, 1800, and 1900 were not evenly divisible by 400, and thus were not leap years as they would have been in the Julian calendar. The year 2000 will be a leap year.

Not all countries immediately adopted the Gregorian calendar. Catholic countries took it as their calendar, but it was not until 1752 that England and America, basically Protestant countries, adopted the Gregorian calendar. Russia changed from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar after the Bolshevik revolution. In so doing the country had to drop 13 days.

The Gregorian calendar, now in use throughout the world, was slightly revised recently. The years 4000, 8000, and 12,000 — all of which would have been leap years — are now simply common years. The Gregorian calendar is thus currently accurate to about one day in 20,000 years.

September study of South area traffic

A requested traffic study of Nameoki Road to determine what can be done to ease congestion — and to decide if a crossing light is justified in front of Bellemore Village Shopping Center — will be delayed until school opens, the Granite City Council was told Tuesday night.

Two weeks ago, Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler wrote the Illinois Department of Transportation, requesting aid in alleviating traffic congestion on Nameoki Road, primarily between Madison Avenue and Pontoon Road.

Of particular interest was congestion caused in the mornings and afternoons for students crossing Nameoki Road to attend Granite City High School South, he noted. IDOT responded to Mayor Schuler's letter by contacting the city's engineering department and working out an agreement in which the city engineer's staff will gather the needed data and the state will study the data and make recommendations. Since Nameoki Road is designated as a state highway, Route 203, the state will have responsibility for the work. City Engineer Monroe Brewer said his department will not begin the study until school opens, since traffic generated by the high school has a major effect on the congestion of Nameoki Road. After the opening of the school, traffic counts and pedestrian studies will be made and the data submitted to the state, Brewer said.

Aldermen to meet with library board in Venice

A special aldermanic committee was appointed by Mayor William Ebersoldt at the Venice City Council meeting Tuesday and was asked to meet with the Venice library board to discuss salaries of library employees.

Appointed were George Lewis, chairman, and Thomas Voegelé and Oscar King. The questions of why the library board did not grant library employees raises that the council had appropriated for in the 1977-78 budget, and what the board's intention is in regard to the 1978-79 budget, were brought up during a special council meeting on the city budget, held last week.

In other business Tuesday, the mayor reported, "We have more money now for demolition of old and dangerous buildings, and I would like the aldermen to get together so that we can finish our demolition work in one good sweep and get all the structures down."

Alderman King asked, "Why did we miss 1013 Douglas St.?" "That request came in too late to get on the official list," Carl Byrnes, city comptroller responded.

"It is important that we get the demolition list right away so our attorneys can handle any legal problems should they arise," Mayor Ebersoldt commented.

"Our citizens have been cooperating very well with our clean-up campaign and I hope they continue. We'll get the old buildings down, and if the citizens keep the grass out and trash picked up, our city will look good," Ebersoldt emphasized. The council approved a bus for the Silver Bells Senior Citizens to go the Illinois State Fair on Monday, Aug. 28, and approved $300 expenses for city officials to attend the Illinois Municipal League convention to be held in Chicago in mid-September.

THE FOUR FOOD GROUPS COOL

It's a hot day and you're not about to heat up the kitchen with cooking. And the barbecue outside has been done to death. So what do you do that's different in fixing dinner — but cool?

There are plenty of ways of coping with the hot weather and at the same time feeding your family well. Start with cold milk and/or iced tea as beverages and let's see if we can't make other things fall in line.

THINGS like raw, precooked or canned vegetables and fresh or canned fruits are obvious as room-temperature foods. Or you can chill them first in your refrigerator. Breadstuffs and precooked macaroni also are foods to be thought of. This takes care of two of the four food groups — vegetables and fruits, and grains.

But how about milk products, and the meat-fish-poultry-egg group?

The milk group is easy. It's as if dairy processors had summer in mind. As stated earlier, milk is a great beverage. It is also cool.

You don't need hot foods to get the protein, carbohydrate, fat, vitamins and minerals you need each day.

SALE ENDS AUGUST 12th

A. "No."
Q. "You've had no other threats of any nature?"
A. "No, sir."
Q. "From anybody?"
A. "No."
Q. "Any time?"
A. "No."
Q. "Now, getting back to the letter of Feb. 1, 74, which you wrote, you start the letter by saying Sheriff John Maeras is a crook."
A. "Yes, sir."
Q. "Could you explain that?"
A. "Well, yes. I was told by our former chief deputy, Demos Nicholas, that he had enough information about Sheriff John Maeras receiving payoffs from these different houses of prostitution that he thought he had enough to have him indicted and sent to the penitentiary. And I said, what do you mean, and he said, I think there is a couple of guys on our department that are picking up payoffs and they're delivering them to Maeras at Maeras' orders, at his discretion or whatever — at his orders, I guess."
Q. "Did he say who these people were?"
A. "He said they were Ronnie Grzywacz, who was a Madison policeman, and John Cooper, who was also with our department."
Q. "What did you do then?"
A. "Well, I asked him how I could help if this was going on. I said, you know, we ought to do something about it. I said what can we do."
Q. "He said well, we'll find out when and where they're moving and where they're going to collect. And we'll follow them and see if we can, you know, gather enough evidence on them to present to a grand jury."
Q. "Now, you say initially in the letter that Maeras is a crook — he's received payoffs from all houses of prostitution in Madison County. You say, I know this because of investigations which I have conducted."
A. "Yes, sir."
Q. "So at the time you wrote this, you had conducted investigations?"
A. "Yes."
Q. "And you were convinced what you said in the first sentence, you were convinced that that was true?"
A. "Yes, sir. He was a captain at that time. Captain Nicholas told me that he was positive that these things were going on, and I more or less took his word for it. The man always seemed like he was telling me the truth."
Q. "But you say, I know this because of investigations which I have conducted."
A. "Along with Captain Nicholas. That's the investigations I'm referring to."
Q. "What specific information did you have?"
A. "Well, this is where I got in a jam. All the information that we have gathered, Captain Nicholas kept in his desk drawer at work or else in his home, and he died in '72, I think."
Q. "And when he died I talked with his wife and I also looked in his desk drawer to see if I could find this file, and I couldn't find the file."
Q. "And his wife didn't know anything about it, although she did tell me that she suspected that Demos had enough on John Maeras to get him out of office."
Q. "But we never could find the files. Myself and a couple other deputies looked really good to find the file, because we knew just as soon as we got it that our headaches were just going to start, and someone had gone through the desk before us because the file wasn't there."
Q. "And when I asked Demos' wife, Ruth, about it, she said that she thought that he had kept it at work and we never did find it."
Q. "What kind of evidence was it?"
A. "Demos had talked with some of these people that Grzywacz and Cooper had gone to, I think he talked with Walter Young."
Q. "He talked with — he ran the Club J in Collinsville. He talked with Myrene Stewart, I believe, who ran a place called Myrene's Steak House in Godfrey. I'm not really sure who else he talked to."
Q. "What specific information — what specific evidence?"
A. "I wasn't there when he talked to them, but he would tell me like, through the day, they're going to be going out tonight so watch them. I was in a squad car at the time I think."
Q. "I was working the patrol division at that time. And I would not out when they're coming out. I would have somebody in the jail let me know when they're coming out."
Q. "And I would just more or less stay back behind them, follow them, and see where they go and then report this to Captain Nicholas and he would in turn go to these different places after them."
Q. "This is Cooper and Grzywacz?"
A. "That's who we were following, yes, sir."
Q. "Did you yourself obtain any evidence of any nature?"
A. "No, not really anything I could — just hearsay and allegations, you know."
Q. "You say in the last sentence of your letter, this is talking about you may not live very long, if this is so check my personal items and you'll find all the evidence you need. What did you mean by that?"
A. "Well, I'll tell you what I meant. I thought that I would be able to get my hands on that file that Demos had, and by the time anything happened, if it did happen, that I would have enough evidence right there that the federal authorities could move right in and wrap him up."
Q. "You said that Captain Demos Nicholas approached you suggesting there was corruption. He got you to work with him investigating that corruption. How long did your investigation last?"
A. "It was shortly after Maeras took office. That was in '70. It went from, I guess, 1970 until the time of his death."
Q. "The night before he died I met with him at a place called is Acacia. It's a restaurant outside of Granite City, and he said with me about ready to wrap him up."
Q. "I said, you're talking about the sheriff, and he said yeah. He said, I think I've got him right where I want him."
Q. "What was the date of that?"
A. "He died, I think, in September of '72, I believe, and it was the day before — the night before he died."

Later in the grand jury questioning, the exhibit shows, the attorney said:
Q. "We started with your testimony this morning by saying that you received threats."
A. "Yes, sir." Burns replied.
Q. "Telephone calls, and you received information from people who suggested that the calls were from hoods from Chicago?"
A. "That's right."
Q. "And you got scared?"
A. "Yeah, I did."
Q. "So, you said, in order to protect yourself you wrote a letter making allegations against the sheriff."
A. "Yes."
Q. "How do you figure that protects yourself?"
A. "Well, I just..."
Q. "The threats were not from the sheriff. They were from hoods in Chicago, according to your testimony this morning."
A. "Like I said, I don't know what exactly was going on, but I believe something was going on. I still believe it."
Q. "There is — you know, there was — this stuff was just too much out in the open, you know, for everybody to see."
Q. "You could walk down the street and somebody would tell you that there's something going on at the Marco Polo Lounge."
A. "There was nothing for somebody to say, you know, what's new at the Marco Polo Lounge."
Q. "I know there was something going on, and if those people could get me out of the way, I know they would have done it. I know they would have."
Q. "What was going on there?"
A. "There was prostitution going on there and probably who knows how many fencing operations."
Q. "I was told by one guy you can go in there and buy a fun coat, a diamond ring, a car, anything you wanted to."
Q. "How could you figure thinking this and being scared on Feb. 1, 1974, you had the phone calls from the people you had heard were from Chicago, how do you think you can help yourself by making allegations against the sheriff?"
Q. "So far, you've testified that there were fencing operations going on, you can buy a car, you can buy whatever."
A. "You could do anything at that Marco Polo Lounge, I know you could."
Q. "How do you tie the two things together?"
A. "I told the sheriff about when I received these threats and he just more or less, well, you know, you're going to get them in your line of work."
Q. "But when two guys come down here, like Klebschur told me, they come down from Chicago looking for the guy that closed that Marco Polo Lounge, I've got reason to be concerned."
Q. "He just acted like it was nothing. In fact, excuse me, but he called it bull. He said that's nothing but bull. I said, I don't think so."
Q. "When they start threatening me and start threatening my daughter, it's more than bull."
Q. "So far, you talked about you had the phone calls and the threats and you wrote the letter to protect yourself. In the letter, you say the sheriff is a crook. Has anything happened to you since February of '74?"
A. "No, not really, not that I can put my fingers on, no."
Q. "Well, what can you come close..."
A. "If I had the file that Demos — that we had compiled, this thing wouldn't be going on. It would be over with and done."
Q. "But what if it is, I should have never written this letter, and I realize that. And a lot of things in that letter aren't true, just like I told you."
Q. "Why don't you sum up what is true?"
A. "I think there was some prostitution going on and I think that somebody was taking care of it, because it just doesn't come out in the open like that."
Q. "Who do you think was taking care of it?"
A. "I don't know."
Q. "Still later in the questioning:
Q. "Are you afraid of Grzywacz?"
A. "Yes, sir, I am."
Q. "Why?"
A. "Because of the people that he's associated with and different things I've been told."
Q. "What have you been told?"
A. "Well, I was told that Grzywacz wanted to put some prostitutes in her tavern and the lady that told me this, her husband was there and he..."
Q. "What's her name?"
A. "Jenny Huey. Jenny told me that Grzywacz wanted to put some prostitutes in her tavern and her husband told Grzywacz that he wasn't interested, he didn't want anything to do with it."
Q. "And there was a fight, and Huey ended up with a pretty good cut on his arm."
Q. "How long have you been afraid of Grzywacz?"
A. "Oh, I guess probably ever since I had, you know, any inkling or thought that there was something going on."
Q. "I talked to him about it one time. I said, you know, this theory that you're going around checking on different deputies getting paid off."
Q. "I said, I don't buy that, and you know I don't buy it."
Q. "And he just kind of laughed and said, well, anybody that, you know, gets in the way or anything like that, he said we know how to deal with those kind of people and I just..."
Q. "Did you ever ask Larry Buhl to protect you from Grzywacz?"
A. "Larry Buhl and Glenn Newman and myself and Paul Barklow all started carrying shotguns with us, and keeping them loaded and by the door after the raid at Big Jenny's Tavern in Madison."
Q. "For a long time did you do that?"
A. "For a long time, a good year. It went on and on."
Q. "And it was continued, continued, continued, one of those kind of deals, for I don't even remember how long."
Q. "And we finally got up here to Springfield to the State Liquor Board and Jenny Huey was there and Paul Barklow and myself."

"And I asked Jenny, I said, Jenny, why are you protecting this guy? He's tried to shake you down. He's caused you all kind of trouble."
"I said, why are you protecting this guy."
She said, Gary, I've got kids and they told me that if I said anything at all that they would kill my kids."
"And she wouldn't tell me who they were. And that woman told me that right here at the State Liquor Commission, when we came up here for that hearing."
"She said if I was you, I'd look back over my shoulder once in awhile to make sure nobody was looking at you. I said I kind of expected that, anyway."

Q. "One thing, when we started out you mentioned you had some telephone threats. You went into detail, and you said you had one other threat, and that was on the day you wrote the letter. What was that?"
A. "That was the day the phone call said, we know you've got a ten-year-old daughter in Madison. And she doesn't live with me."
"She lives with her mother. And it more or less kind of inferred that something may happen to her, if I didn't more or less watch my step. And since then, I've moved my daughter down to Nashville, Ill., with her grandmother."

Library services studied

Continued library improvements here are the topic of current studies.

Library Director Bob Stack and Library Board Member Ron Coleman of Granite City attended the Library ABC's II Institute, a week's session for public librarians and public library trustees, held at the Student Center to Southern Illinois University at Carbondale July 25-29.

Goal of the institute was to provide head librarians and trustees of public libraries in Southern Illinois with an opportunity to increase effectiveness in providing services. The institute topics included public relations, library finance, and the law and the public library.

Ruth Leek, former assistant director and library consultant with the Central Kansas Library System in Great Bend, was the keynote speaker.

An all-day session on public relations and the public library was presented by Sue Fontaine, public information officer for the Washington State Library and public relations consultant. Audio-visual presentations and group discussions were major activities that day.

On Thursday, Mary Clark Ormond of the Aurora (Ill.) Public Library addressed the topic of library finance. Five representatives of book publishing and distributing agencies also presented their merchandise at exhibits which began that night. The participants also reviewed and were entertained by 16mm films available from library systems through each public library.

On Friday, Attorney John E. Juergensmeyer, legal counsel to the North Suburban Library System and an expert on Illinois library law, spoke on legal concerns that public librarians and trustees have in operating a library.

Individual conferences with institute staff and tours of the Morris Library at SIUC were available to participants in the afternoon. That evening, a Buffalo tro (cookout) and picnic at Crab Orchard Lake gave the institute participants an opportunity to become better acquainted. Final activities of the institute occurred Saturday. A buffet breakfast was followed by a session on grants presented by Helen Dillinger, staff member of SIUC research and Projects. Kathryn Gieseler, director of the Illinois State Library, discussed Illinois State Library grants.

The institute concluded with an evaluation of the week's activities by Harold Rath, library consultant.

The institute was funded by a Library Services and Construction Act grant and was administered by the Cumberland Trail, Kaskaskia, Lewis and Clark, and Shawnee library systems in cooperation with the Illinois State Library, the SIUC Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media, and the SIUC Division of Continuing Education.

Tinsley sustained an injury to his neck and was treated in the hospital emergency room.

Martinez and a passenger in the Tinsley auto, Tim Elders of St. Louis, sustained minor injuries.

Woman injured at Rt. 3-Rock Road

Dystrophy funds to be raised Saturday at Tri-Mor Bowl

By MICK STRANGE
Press-Record Staff Writer

"Jerry needs you" is the cry of the Quad-City residents as they are asked to help Jerry Lewis fight muscular dystrophy on Saturday. A goal of $5,000 has been set, according to Mrs. Deloris Hay, chairman of the Tri-Mor events.

A parade for the fight against muscular dystrophy will be held at 7:30 tonight from the Granite City High School South parking lot to Tri-Mor bowl, 3701 Nameoki Road.

MDA (Muscular Dystrophy Association) Day at Tri-Mor will begin at midnight Friday night and run for 24 hours, with a multitude of events occurring at the bowling lanes.

At midnight Friday eight game "sweepers" will be held by bowlers. At noon on Saturday, there will be a "Gong Show." Charlotte Peters will be on hand at 2 p.m.

Granite City police and firemen will bowl against each other beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The Jerry Green dancers also will perform at 3 p.m.

Elvis Presley impersonator Ron, currently performing "A Touch of Elvis" at the Barn Theater, will be signing autographs at Tri-Mor at about 4:30 p.m.

And there will be a variety show at 7 p.m. on Saturday.

Numerous bowling leagues and individual bowlers are Assisting with the fund drive. Children, mainly the junior bowlers, are going door to door with the official "Jerry Lewis" yellow sign-up sheets, seeking donations.

Auditor probing loans to students

By RAY SERATI
SPRINGFIELD — It is up to the auditor general to find out why there have been so many people defaulting on payments for state-guaranteed student loans.

The audit of just how much has been repaid and what hasn't been was sought in a Senate-originated resolution.

It was sponsored by Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mt. Prospect, and was passed in the closing days of the spring session.

The program is handled through the Illinois state Scholarship Commission. This isn't the first time the commission has come under fire from a state senator. A few years ago Sen. Jack Schaffer, R-Cary, was miffed when he found out the commission didn't have a Springfield office. At that time it maintained offices only in Deerfield (Lake County).

Schaffer had legislation approved which forced the commission to open an office in Springfield. Regner is upset because, he says, the default rate is too high. The program is carrying the full faith and credit of the state. He points out since the state guarantees the loans, all loans should be paid off.

Some state employees who have availed themselves of the program also have failed to make the repayments, according to research by Regner.

Under the program a student gets a loan from a private financial institution. While the student is in school the state pays the interest on the loan and at the same time guarantees that the loan will be repaid. However, if upon graduation the repayment of the loan is not made, the state pays off the loan and tries to collect from individual students.

The Illinois program started back in 1966. Since that time it is estimated that about 250,000 such loans have been made.

When the resolution was being discussed in the state commission, officials said about 15,000 were defaulted. However, about half of those were repaid after the individuals concerned were contacted by commission officials. About 400 of the defaulted loans were state employees and many are now making repayment.

Granite City Press-Record
Commission officials feel the rate of repayment has not been bad, considering the amount of loans made. But what will be considered bad or good will hinge a great deal on the findings of the auditor general's office. It will prepare a detailed report on the program. This also is the first time such a commission program will come under close scrutiny of the auditor general's office.

Chair—ready to mete out justice
By JOHN WHITESIDE
JOLIET — Stateville's electric chair hasn't been used for 28 years. Herman Frederick Weber, the chair's 13th victim, died there at 1:07 a.m. on Sept. 16, 1949. One jolt of 2,400 volts of electricity followed by three jolts of 600 volts each were sent through the body of the Peoria murderer. The chair has been in the death house since then. Several murderers have lived on Death Row. But the death penalty was abolished by the Supreme Court in the early 1970s. The death house was converted to an orientation center for new prisoners. The electric chair stayed in its chamber. Illinois finally got a new death penalty law, still untested in the high courts. The electric chair is back into operational order. A Death Row of five cells has been opened. William Roderick Hill now lives in one of those cells. Hill, 28, was convicted of murdering Allen Ziperstein in 1964 and Robert Fields in 1975. Both victims were the owners of pharmacy stores in Chicago. Hill was allegedly hired to kill the men by a Chicago dentist. The dentist was indicted, but he died before going to trial. Police have indicted Hill is suspected of other murders in the Chicago area. It took a Cook County jury about five hours to recommend Hill for the death sentence. That sentence was made by Judge John Moran. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair on Jan. 9. However, the case was automatically sent to the Illinois Supreme Court. Observers of the case believe it will take several years for the case to make its way through the appeal process. By that time the other four cells next to Hill will probably be occupied. And each man there will be thinking about that old wooden chair downstairs, which was first used in 1928. Two black switches in an adjoining room control the release of the electricity. The warden will give the signal for those switches to be thrown. Among those present will be the county coroner and six witnesses. Hill, who was serious most of the time while discussing his situation, still manages to have a sense of humor. As a reporter and photographer team completed an interview with Hill, he looked over at a guard and asked if photos were taken of the electric chair. "Yes," the guard replied. "Sure glad I wasn't sitting there when he did," Hill said.

SEEING EYE TO EYE. Three-year-old Pearson Hampton of Madison gives a critical eye to the work of artist Ted Rose, a student at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Rose's artwork is on exhibit in the Opapi Room of the University Center. The young art critic was visiting the campus.

See's featuring old-fashioned candy items

Over 55 years ago, Charles A. See built a candy business around the image of his mother, Mary See. He put her on every box of See's Candy in every See's Candy shop.

The public image of See's Candy — like the image of Mary See — is "compounded of fact and folklore, the quality of the candy itself, the picture of grandmotherly Mary See on every box, a little old candy maker stirring up delightful things in a copper kettle,' according to the publication Candy Industry.

This image, still strong today, is greeting shoppers at St. Clair Square, where See's opened on Wednesday.

"Candy is still made the old fashioned way — only the finest cream, butter and chocolate and the very best nuts and fruit. They still are stirred in small batches in copper kettles," a spokesman said.

"See's Candy is old fashioned, made with old fashioned attention to quality."

State Senator Sam Vadalabene will christen a 1,750-horsepower towboat at 4:30 p.m. Monday at the Tri-City Regional Port District, 2801 Rock Road.

The newest addition to Art's Fleeting Service will operate within the Tri-City Port District harbor.

Following the ceremony dignitaries will take a short cruise.

APARTMENT LOOTED

A $70 fan, a $100 radio and a $250 vacuum cleaner were stolen between Tuesday and 8:50 a.m. Wednesday from an apartment at 2453 Cleveland Blvd., which is owned by Eugene Smallman, 3753 Fair Oaks Drive.

A blue and white truck operated by Jerry T. Gibson, 28, of 2683 Missouri Ave., was halted by a patrolling officer at 6 p.m. Tuesday on Rock Road, at Denver Street, and a quantity of cannabis allegedly was found in An informational document alleging a felony count of possession of cannabis was issued Wednesday by the Madison County state's attorney's office.

Gibson pleaded innocent at 3:40 p.m. Wednesday and bond was set at $50,000. He was released to Madison County sheriff's deputies at 6:30 a.m. today and was transported to the county jail.

Gibson was sentenced on Dec. 19, 1977, to two years of probation and 10 weekends in the Madison County Jail after a jury found him guilty of reckless conduct in connection with the Sept. 21 shooting of Billy Crook, 26, of Granite City.

He also was arrested May 3, 1978, on an informational felony document, charging him with possession of cannabis. Gibson was released on the latter charge on a $25,000 property bond.

CAR IS STOLEN

The black 1972 Corvette convertible auto of Beverly Wickham, 2222 Benton St., was stolen from the 1700 block of Maple Street between 5 a.m. and 7:50 a.m. Wednesday. The auto has a black interior and damage to the driver's door.

Don't cry about it, but it's about time to harvest onions

By CHRIS DOLL
Area Gardening Adviser

It's time to harvest onions if the necks are dry, if 95 percent of the tops have bent over, or if they are as large as you want them to grow.

Onions can be dug anytime for table use, but should be mature if they are to be stored. As long as some green leaves are showing, onions are not totally mature. This means that the practice of undercutting or cutting of the roots will be beneficial.

Use a hoe or shovel to cut under the bulb, and leave it in the ground for 30 to 72 hours. This starts the drying process.

Then pull the onions, and place them in a well ventilated, warm area either on a drying rack or hung in bunches.

Drying and curing takes from two to four weeks. The higher the humidity, the longer it takes. Forced warm air will speed up the process.

When completely dry, the onions should be cleaned, topped, and placed in a slatted crate or mesh bag. Then store in a cool, dry place.

Storage failure of onions may be due to one of several things. Incomplete drying will result in rotten bulbs. The neck-rot fungus may also be troublesome, especially with poor drying.

The variety is also extremely important, as the sweet, hamburger type onion is less adapted to long-term storage than the globe types.

For the best in onions for storage, plant a "Globe" type variety, early in the spring, with plenty of space between plants, keep them growing, and harvest when mature.

Potatoes should be dug when the tops die or when the tubers are big enough to satisfy you. Dig when the soil is dry and cleaning and handling will be easy.

A potato fork is a good tool for digging, but a plow, shovel, spade or hoe can be used also. Many of the tubers will come out when the vines are pulled.

Potatoes that are reasonably clean need only to be cured before going to storage. Dirty potatoes can be brushed or washed before curing.

Curing is the process of drying tubers about a week at room temperatures and high humidity. This permits the healing of skinned areas and small cracks.

Cuts and rots will probably decay before going into storage. Keep in a dark room or cover with burlap bags while curing to keep light from turning the potato green.

Once cured, the potatoes can be stored. The ideal potato storage is cool (40 to 45 degrees F.), dark and with relative humidity of 85 to 90 percent. A root cellar or good basement are best locations.

Because outdoor temperatures are so high this time of year, cool storage conditions are difficult to maintain. Garages and breezeways are poor alternatives. So, strive for uniform temperatures as cool as possible, with the darkness or reduced light.

Don't store where the temperatures soar to 80 or above during the day.

Tubers should remain dormant or free from sprouting for about 2 months after harvest. Unfortunately, there are no materials available to the home gardener for treating the tubers to extend this period.

Low temperature storage and hand de-sprouting are the only preventive methods for most growers.

Until the world's largest electronic chain designed and built the TRS-80 microcomputer there were only two ways to go. Build a computer from parts and pieces as a hobbyist. Or buy or rent a computer for your business or activity. The cost was often in the tens of thousands of dollars. And what you got was probably more than you required. Radio Shack had a different idea: to take the mystery out of computers AND dramatically reduce their cost, without sacrificing the essentials. The result is TRS-80. More TRS-80 computers have been delivered to satisfied users than (as a safe guess) ANY other equipment of its kind. Unlike many others, TRS-80 is not just for fun and games; it's professional. It has its own 12" screen—it's not just another add-on to a TV set. And it's available from stock, not just another undeliverable advertising claim. Best of all, you can take it to any AC outlet, plug it in, and put it to work. Our people can show you its benefits and unprecedented affordability. Please come in to your nearest Radio Shack store. And prepare to be very, very pleasantly surprised!

Harry N. Maragides, son of Mrs. Frodo Maragides, 1020 Grand Ave., Madison, and the late N. K. Maragides, has been selected by the Marine Corps to attend the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, National Defense University, Washington, D.C.

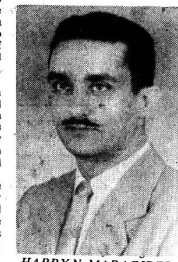

The Industrial College is a joint service, advanced-level educational institution which conducts graduate level courses of study in national security with an emphasis on management of national resources.

Its objective is to enhance the preparation of selected military officers and civilian personnel for positions of high trust in the national security structure. It is called the "capstone of the U.S. military educational system."

Maragides, who currently heads Integrated Logistics Support at the U.S. Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington, is the only civilian selected by the Marine Corps to attend during the 1978-79 academic year, beginning in mid-August.

A native Madisonian, Maragides enlisted in the Navy upon graduating from Madison High School.

He retired from military service after 21 years of active duty and then attained his bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland in 1965, graduating with high honors.

HARRY N. MARAGIDES

Following a three-year period of teaching science, he was employed by the Navy Supply Systems Command, Washington, as supply management officer.

He earned his master of science degree from the Graduate School of Government and Business Administration, George Washington University, Washington, D.C., in 1973.

He and his wife, Kathy, and son, Mark, reside at 11309 College View Drive, Silver Spring, Md. His older son, Karl, is practicing dentistry in Atlanta.

Medical and health group being formed at hospital

Young adults, both male and female, interested in medical and health careers are being invited to an informational meeting Monday, Aug. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wiesman Room of St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Steve Missey, emergency medical services coordinator, will act as advisor to a new Explorer post being formed.

"This post is for young adults interested in health careers, and will offer them a chance to learn more about the careers in the health care field that they are interested in, and other careers in the health profession," Missey said.

"I don't want young people to think that this Explorer post will be all work. We want to make it not only educational but enjoyable. We plan to include leisure time activities that are of interest to the post members."

"We hope to have people who are skilled and experienced in things like camping, swimming, skin diving, boating, backpacking, etc., come and talk and share their experiences." Those wishing more information on the group being organized may telephone Missey at 876-2020, Ext. 411, Mondays through Fridays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

'Mainstreaming' said to be working well

By JEFF BRODY

Illinois has done well in serving special education students, Joe Fisher, a state assistant superintendent of schools, says.

Fisher, in charge of the Illinois Office of Education section on specialized educational services, reported on the status of the state in complying with federal special education requirements.

Although school districts do not have to participate in Public Law 94-142, they must in order to receive federal funds for special education that first were distributed this year. Another federal statute, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, requires districts to provide educational services for all students, regardless of the handicap.

"In general, Illinois has done a very good job," Fisher said. "But we still have children who have been unserved and we still have children and parents who have been denied due process."

The law, Fisher explained, allows parents to participate in the decision to assign a child to special education and prohibits parents from being charged for the education of their child. It also requires there be a plan for the child's special education program that assures the child will be placed in the least restrictive environment.

That concept, called mainstreaming, prohibits arbitrary segregation of special education students. The law requires special students be allowed to interact with regular classroom students as much as possible.

Fisher said he is sure there are some students in special education classes in Illinois who should be in regular classes. But he believes that number is relatively small.

One of the most controversial provisions of the new law is the guarantee of a free education for all students, including those whose handicaps require placement in private residential facilities.

School districts are now responsible for up to $2,500 per student for bills generated by such students. Parents must supply the rest.

Seek GC street resurfacing bids

The Granite City Council voted Tuesday night to seek bids for undertaking a $260,000 program to resurface damaged streets in the city.

The council also decided to seek bids for purchase of a backhoe and concrete breaker to be purchased with federal revenue sharing funds, to aid in repairing other streets damaged by the severe winter.

Specifications are being prepared for bidding on a major resurfacing program allocating an average of about $35,000 for each of the city's seven wards and nearly $52,000 for priority projects selected by Mayor Paul Schuler.

The finalized program, also approved by the council

Tuesday night, is modified from a tentative program submitted to the council last week.

In the First Ward, asphalt resurfacing is planned on 22nd Street between Lee and Washington avenues, and on Lee Avenue from 20th to 23rd streets.

Drainage improvements for Myrtle Avenue also are planned, but are not included in the first phase of the program.

In the Second Ward, resurfacing is planned on Iowa Street from 29th to 30th streets; on Grand Avenue, from 26th to 29th streets, and on Cleveland Boulevard from 23rd to 24th streets.

Third Ward projects are for Cleveland Boulevard from 20th to 23rd, Benton Street from 22nd to 23rd, and Kate Street from East 24th Street to Hodges Avenue.

Resurfacing in the Fourth Ward would include the 2900 block of State Street, Benton Street from 27th to Oregon Avenue, and Logan Street between West 23rd and 25th streets.

Fifth Ward work is planned for Morgan Street and Roosevelt Avenue, including a major rebuilding of Morgan Street. However, the work is considered a separate project and is not included in the first phase.

In the Sixth Ward, resurfacing is planned for five streets including Fortune Drive from Ramona to Leonard; Wilson Avenue from Sunset to Fortune; O'Hare Avenue from Kilarney to Edgewood; Frontenac Lane from Westchester to Franklin, and Willow Avenue from St. Clair to Edgewood.

The Seventh Ward projects are for Oaklawn Drive, for Janday Lane from Oaklawn to Terrace Lane; Terrace Lane from Oaklawn to Ponton Road, and for the intersection of Stearns and Lynch avenues.

The mayor's programs are for resurfacing Niedringhaus Avenue from 20th to Adams; 24th Street from Benton to Washington, and 27th Street from Benton to State Street.

The first phase is estimated to cost $260,000, if bids received are within the engineer's an-ticulated cost.

The rebuilding of Morgan Street, including curbs, gutters, sidewalks and new street surface, plus some work on Roosevelt Street, will cost about $35,000, it is estimated. And the Myrtle Avenue drainage will cost nearly $4,000.

Neither the Fifth Ward programs nor the Myrtle Avenue drainage are included in the $260,000 program and will require separate ordinances and appropriations.

The city hopes to undertake a program next year of using city street department materials and employees to resurface streets. But equipment to be purchased with future federal revenue sharing funds is not available at this time, so an outside contractor will be sought to do the work after bidding.

NEW STAFF SERGEANT Jim Tanner (right) is congratulated by Lieutenant Colonel John B. Sharp, district recruiting commander.

Attendance at Cub day camp increases

The seventh annual Cahokia Mound Scout Council summer day camp was increased this year from one to two four-day weeks due to increased interest by leaders and cubs.

Last summer, the event attracted over 200 cub scouts, and the total increased to 317 this summer.

Ernie Kohlenberger was general chairman of the event, assisted by Mrs. Pauline Perkins and Mrs. Pat Foote, coordinating the Uniway District (Quad-City) activities, in addition to 50 volunteers.

During the four-day event, the cubs went to Camp Sunnen near Potosi, Mo., where the camp staff showed the youngsters what they have to look forward

Recruiter promoted

Jim Tanner, a recruiter who works out of the Army Recruiting Station, 1206 Niedringhaus Ave., Granite City, has been promoted to the rank of staff sergeant. The promotion was conferred Tuesday at a ceremony by Lieutenant Colonel John B. Sharp, U.S. Army St. Louis district recruiting commander.

A native of Marion, Ohio, Staff Sgt. Tanner joined the Army in 1971. He trained at Fort Jackson, S.C., and went to Berlin to serve as a company clerk.

He served in Florida, Belgium and most recently Germany before coming to the Granite City station. He has earned the Army of Occupation medal and the good conduct medal.

Gowe Printing firm acquired

Gowe Printing Company has become part of Post Corporation, with the signing of final papers by officers of the two companies.

Gowe is a commercial printing firm headquartered at Medina, Ohio, which also owns weekly newspapers in Strongsville, Brunswick and Wadsworth, Ohio. In its latest fiscal year, it had sales of over $10 million, of which 95 percent came from commercial printing operations.

Post is a diversified company with principal operations in newspaper publishing and broadcast stations. It will operate Gowe as a wholly-owned subsidiary.

A spokesman said Post has had a small commercial printing subsidiary for several years, but that the acquisition of Gowe "puts us more strongly in the commercial printing business."

Gowe was a publicly held corporation, in the transaction Gowe's shareholders will receive $11 cash per share upon surrender of their shares to National City Bank of Cleveland, the exchange agent.

The Post spokesman said Gowe's Strongsville and Brunswick newspapers will become part of Post's Sun Newspapers group, which serves suburban Cleveland and now northern Medina County. The Wadsworth paper will be operated as a separate entity.

Neil R. Gowe, president of Gowe Printing, will remain in that position under Post's ownership, and all other key Gowe employees will remain in their present positions.

The only change planned by Post is the adding of more printing units to Gowe's Goss Urbanite press so it can print most of the Sun Newspapers and also be more competitive for certain types of commercial business.

Mercers juniors fall in final 11-0

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The Mercers Junior Baseball team of 15 and 16 year olds boys made it all the way to the finals in the National NBC (National Baseball Congress) Tournament here last night, but ran right into a buzz saw in the form of the team from Newport News, Va. and lost 11-0.

Mercers had gained the finals by defeating defending champion Macon, Ga. Tuesday afternoon 9-7 and the host team, Jeffersonville, Ind. 7-4 Tuesday night.

Against Newport News, the losing pitcher for Mercers was Greg Faulkner. However, according to Mercers manager Jake Hinterser, he deserved a better fate.

"We committed five errors," said Hinterser. "I think it all caught up to us at the wrong time. We had been very fortunate up to that point and some boys who usually don't make errors did."

But Hinterser emphasized he was not downgrading his club. "I'm as proud of these guys as I can be," he said. "They stayed in there and held their heads high."

"You can't take anything away from Newport News," he said. "They're a heck of a ball club."

Hinterser may have been understating the issue. Newport News had beaten its previous two foes in the tournament by a combined total of 47-3.

Against Macon, Ga., John Vrenick was the winning pitcher. He scattered 10 hits, struck out five batters and walked three.

Sammy's advances to Regional

DECATUR — Sammy's girls softball team of Granite City placed second in the state here over the weekend after a week-long rain delay of the championship round of games in the American Softball Association (ASA) Girls' State Tournament.

Sammy's, coming out of the loser's bracket of the double-elimination affair, defeated the East Peoria Merchants 7-6 Friday in the completion of a rain delayed game of the Sunday before. However, Sammy's lost to the same team 5-2 in the second game Friday night.

Sammy's, because it was a loser's bracket team, had to defeat East Peoria twice to claim the state championship. The team was earlier knocked into the loser's bracket by East Peoria.

However, both teams will advance to the Midwest Regional Tournament in Indianapolis Aug. 18-20. Bill's Auto Sales of Granite City placed third in the state, thus missing going to the Regional Tournament by one place. Bill's defeated the Collinsville Comanches in the third-place game.

Sammy's went into the makeup game against East Peoria in a bad spot. Trailing 3-1 in the top of the third inning with the bases loaded and only one out. But on the first pitch of the suspended game, the East Peoria batter lined to Sammy's leftfielder Cathy Budge who threw home to pitcher Linda Spence covering for a double play to end the threat.

Sammy's then came up with four runs in the bottom of the inning and held on for the 7-6 victory. Linda Spence was the winning pitcher. In addition to her possible game-saving throw to the plate, Budge also tripped for Sammy's.

However, in the second game, East Peoria's pitcher, tournament MVP Lila Thomas, proved to be too much for Sammy's, as the Merchants chalked up the 5-2 victory and took the state championship in the process.

Tri-City-led North hands Champion final win

By PETE HAYES
Press-Record Sports Editor
CAHOKIA — Like a spring thunderstorm, the District 22 American Legion North all-stars struck quickly here Tuesday night and handed the South All-Stars a 10-6 loss in the annual North-South post-season classic.

Going into the top of the eighth inning trailing 5-2, the North squad, managed by Tri-Cities Post 113 manager Conrad "Babe" Champion, scored six runs in the frame, added two more in ninth and coasted in with the victory.

Champion, who announced his retirement from Legion baseball last week, said it felt good to see his team finally start hitting the ball in the eighth. Prior to the seventh, the North squad had managed only one hit off a menagerie of South all-star hurlers.

"IT WAS FUNNY, they had the bigger 'gunners' up there at the plate, but it was us who started getting good wood on the ball," said Champion. "It was especially gratifying to see who was doing a good part of the hitting."

Champion was referring to three members of his Tri-City Post 113 squad who were on the all-stars, shortstop Tom Hennrich, second baseman Randy Smith and catcher Keith Champion (Babe's son).

All three players entered the game in the fifth inning. However, Champion said that wasn't the way he had it planned. "Tommy (Hennrich) was going to start at shortstop, but he wanted to play with Smitty and Keith one last time, so I put them all in at once," said Champion.

The three Granite Cityans had a total of four hits and scored three runs in the innings of the North rally.

HENNRICH STARTED the six-run eighth off with a single. He went to second when Smith grounded to the pitcher, and when third baseman Spicuzza slashed a single up the middle.

Champion drove in Hennrich when he hit a line drive between second and third followed by first baseman John Deist's base hit to right field. Deist is from Bethalto.

Leftfielder Bob Buehler batted at the fourth, all star to reach base when he tripled to deep centerfield driving in champion and Spicuzza.

A double by Jay Hoffman, a rightfielder from Highland, drove in Deist. After a ground out, pitcher Jim Holecsek walked which brought Hennrich to the plate for the second time in the inning. He hit a double to deep rightfield which hit the wall on the fly and drove in Hoffman with the sixth run of the frame. Smith flew out to centerfield to end the inning.

"Hey, did you see me knock that one out there?" said Hennrich after the game. "When I first hit it, I thought it was gone."

Another Granite Cityan who played well and impressed Champion was starting third baseman Bob Batey from the Glen Carbon Post. Batey, who started at shortstop all season for Glen Carbon, had three chances at third and made good on all of them.

Batey's a fine natural athlete," said Champion. "He can field just about any position well and he can really rip the ball."

BATEY PROVED that statement in the first inning when he hit a deep fly ball to centerfield which was caught near the warning track.

Tri-City pitcher Tim Kirksey came in the fifth inning, but Wilson Park. Papes and his partner Linda Vaughn were defeated by Dave and Judy Sparks. The finals of the tourney are set for tonight.

SIUE's Lee steps down; cites 'personal reasons'

EDWARDSVILLE — Roy E. Lee, who established the intercollegiate baseball program at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in 1968 and led the SIUE Cougars to eight straight post-season National Collegiate Athletic Association tournaments, has resigned as varsity baseball coach at the University.

Lee said he is resigning effective the beginning of fall quarter, Sept. 15, and will continue at the University as an assistant professor in the department of health, recreation and physical education of the School of Education.

Citing "personal reasons" for his resignation, Lee said he wants to devote more time to the academic side of baseball and recreation. A former semi-pro and professional baseball player, including a stint with the old New York Giants, Lee has been involved in baseball, physical education and coaching for more than 40 years.

Eldon M. Bigham, assistant to the vice-president for student affairs at SIUE, said the University will work with Lee in expanding his academic assignment. Bigham said a search for a new coach will be launched in the near future.

Lee has an outstanding record as a player, coach, and teacher," Bigham said, "and while his guidance of the baseball team will be missed, we are pleased that he has decided to continue with the University in a different capacity."

Under Coach Lee's leadership, the baseball Cougars have advanced to the NCAA Division II post-season play-offs every year they have been eligible until this season. SIUE finished third in 1972, second in 1976 and was eliminated in two games in the double elimination tourney in 1977.

In nine years, the Cougars have compiled a record of 237 victories, 145 defeats and 4 ties. Lee's coaching career includes six years as head baseball mentor at St. Louis University, where his teams won four consecutive Missouri Valley titles, an unprecedented record. He left St. Louis University in 1967 to inaugurate the baseball program at SIUE.

Many of Lee's college players have had or are currently enjoying successful careers in professional baseball, and numerous others have entered the fields of coaching and education.

A native of Elmira, New York, Lee completed his undergraduate work in education at Bowling Green State University in Ohio and received his master's degree from Washington University in St. Louis. He played high school baseball and American Legion ball, as well as semi-pro ball, before signing with the Boston Red Sox in 1936. Playing in various leagues until 1941, he entered the Air Force and served as a player-manager for three years in the baseball program at Scott Air Force Base.

In 1948, Lee signed a contract with the New York Giants and played with various teams and leagues for the next five years. Lee also coached several years during the summer seasons in the Central Illinois Collegiate Baseball League at Springfield and Peoria. In addition, he has assisted with numerous other intramural and community athletic and recreational programs in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

Lee has conducted numerous academic studies on the game of baseball and has been a frequent speaker at NCAA clinics and seminars.

Lee and his wife, Margaret, are residents of Troy.

Bone picked at SLU

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis University basketball coach Ron Ekker Tuesday announced the hiring of Bob Bone as an assistant coach for the 1979-80 basketball season.

The 23-year-old Bone is a 1977 graduate of the University of Missouri-St. Louis where he was an NCAA division II All-American two years in a row. Most recently Bone served as a graduate assistant coach at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

"Bob is a fine addition to our staff," New Billiken coach Ron Ekker said. "He is from the immediate St. Louis area and relates extremely well to the people in the area. Also he is a product of Collinsville High School and Southern Illinois-Carbondale, two fine basketball programs."

"Another factor in the hiring of Bob was the fact that he coached at a Missouri Valley Conference school and knows a little about how I coach and run my program," Ekker said.

In addition to his basketball exploits at Missouri-St. Louis, Bone was an all-American baseball player and a member of the Dean's List six out of a possible eight semesters.

Bone and his wife Lori have a one year old daughter, Leslie Renee.

EDWARDSVILLE — Year-round swimming out-did three months out of the year swimming here Tuesday night when the Montclair Swim Club of Edwardsville handed the Paddlers Swimming and Diving team of Granite City a 200-23 thrashing at the Montclair Swim Club.

Most members of the Montclair team are also members of the Edwardsville YMCA team which features a modern indoor pool and year-round training and coaching. Many members of the Paddlers team have only three months of the summer to practice and work out.

Dave McAlister of Paddlers took first place in the 11-12 year old boys 100 yard freestyle with a time of 1:22.9. Jeff Wellborn was second for Paddlers in 1:23.7.

Jason Jolley of Paddlers won the 11-12 year old boys backstroke with a time of 45.4.

Denise Darnell of Paddlers took first place in the 11-12 girls 50 meter backstroke in 42.1.

The 13-14 year old boys 100 meter backstroke was won by the Paddlers' Shawn Allen in a time of 1:23.9.

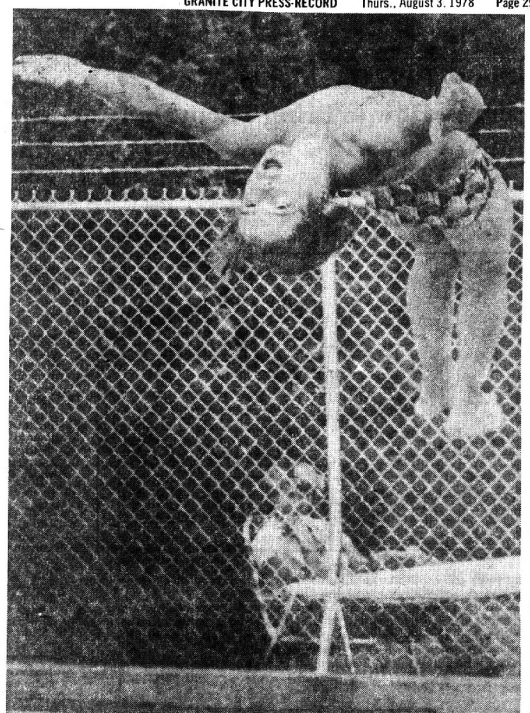

In the eight-and-under boys 25-yard butterfly, Mike McCormick was the winner with a time of 25.0. Collins Harlan was second in 26.9.

Don McAlister of Paddlers won the 11-12 year old boys 50-yard butterfly in a time of 43.4.

The winner of the 15-17 year old girls 100-yard butterfly was Charlene Bennington of Paddlers. She swam the distance in a time of 1:30.9.

The Paddlers team of Mary Brandt, Linda Graebel, Carol Mitchell and Carol Schieber won the 13-14 year old girls 200-yard freestyle relay in a time of 2:21.5.

In diving, Montclair defeated Paddlers 42-25.

DAVID GOFF of the Paddlers diving team shows concentration as he competes Tuesday night at Edwardsville against the Montclair Swim Club.

rattled him some," said Champion. "But I felt it was time to take him (Kirksey) out. I had originally planned to use him in just one inning anyway."

Edwardsville's Jim Holocock was the winning pitcher, coming on in the sixth inning. And he reached base for the first time this season.

In the eighth inning, he walked in his second time at bat this season. The first time at bat, in the sixth, he grounded out to the pitcher.

The losing pitcher was Ron Padgett from Fairview Heights. He was the earned-run leader this season in the district, but the North all-stars found his secret Tuesday night.

"I'll tell you," said Champion. "It's hard for some of these players who haven't played in two or three weeks to come in like this and pitch, or hit for that matter."

"Take Padgett and Kirksey, for instance. Timmy's the kind of pitcher who needs to throw some every day. I'm sure the long lay off had to effect Padgett too."

Champion had an idea the South might save Padgett. "He was probably, at least on paper, their best pitcher," he said. "I think they were probably wanting to save him until the late innings when they got ahead so he'd shut the door on us."

It didn't quite work out that way.

Leading athletes win over asthma

Guess what: at least five gold medal winners in the last five Olympics, an all-star pro basketball player, pros in various other sports and the 1976 Los Angeles Watts athlete of the year have in common? All are asthmatics!

Surprising? Not to Roger Katz, M.D., associate clinical professor of pediatrics at the UCLA School of Medicine and a fellow of the American Academy of Allergy. He says with the right precautions, athletic prowess from asthmatics may be more apt to take your breath away than theirs.

But good medical management and a little individual adjustment can avoid this, Katz says. Kids with asthma often can do as well as (or better than) anyone else. The name of the game is teamwork between patient, parents, doctor and coach or school instructor.

Kids come out winners in more ways than one, he notes. "In general, those who participate a lot seem to be able to do more as time goes on. Their stamina improves."

And though it's hard to measure, I think this helps them stand up better under stress, including the stress of an asthma attack."

Katz believes coaches and school instructors should be taught what to do if a medical emergency does come up. He helped conduct sports medicine meetings to brief them on asthma and other aspects of sports medicine. At which he tells them, "Asthmatics needn't sit out sports."

Saving Suggestions

Utility Bills Out of Sight?
Here's How to Bring Them Down

With summer still simmering, it's hard to think about cold weather—and harder still to think about ever-rising utility bills.

But summer is an ideal time to devise ways of lowering the cost of heating, cooling, and lighting your home, according to the current (August) issue of National Wildlife magazine.

The magazine, published by the National Wildlife Federation, the country's largest conservation education group, cites the case of one Florida homeowner who has cut his power consumption by more than 50 per cent while continuing to use all major appliances.

"With a systematic approach," the magazine says, "homeowners can save considerable money before they invest in solar panels or other devices." As proof it cites a Princeton University study showing that "there can be a 50 per cent difference in utility bills between families living in identical townhouses."

The conservation magazine offers the following suggestions for saving energy and cutting utility bills:

Turn down the water heater thermostat. The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) estimated that you can save at least $20 a year by lowering the setting on your electric water heater from 150 to 130 degrees. (Savings will be less for natural gas heaters.) The higher the temperature inside a water heater, the more heat that's lost through the walls of the tank. Thus, you can save even more by dropping the temperature to 120 degrees. If you have a dishwasher, the thermostat probably should not be set below 140 degrees, but 120 should be more than satisfactory for most manual tasks. A $20 or more savings is a good return for the few minutes it takes to remove the two plates from the front of the heater (remember to cut off the circuit breakers), push back the insulation and move the thermostat pointers to a lower setting.

Insulate the hot water heater. By wrapping a piece of thick, aluminum-backed fiberglass insulation around your tank, you can reduce the amount of heat lost through its sides and save an additional $20 a year. The insulating materials should not cost more than $10 if you do the work yourself. With gas heaters, be careful not to cover the vent holes, if you don't know where they are, ask a service person.

Drain the heater tank. Studies have shown that sediment collecting at the bottom of a water heater reduces the system's efficiency, ultimately producing higher energy bills. Every few months, you can alleviate the problem by opening the plug at the bottom of the tank and letting the water flow out until it runs clear.

Insulate the pipes. In many homes, there can be 60 feet or more of three-quarter-inch piping between the hot water tank and a faucet. That length of pipe contains up to two gallons of water. When you turn on the faucet, you must run off that two gallons, plus an additional gallon of water, to warm up the pipes, before any really hot water comes out. If a hot water faucet is used ten times a day, this means that you may be wasting 900 gallons of hot water a month. The cost of insulating 60 feet of pipe would pay for itself in six months.

Hurry your showers. Contrary to popular belief, showers save more energy than baths only if they are relatively short. During a long, steamy shower with the faucet giving off eight gallons a minute, it doesn't take long before you have drained off more hot water than you would have used in a 30-gallon bathtub. You can determine how much water your showerhead gives off each minute by timing how long it takes to fill a one- or two-gallon bucket.

Use less water. If your family doesn't want to take shorter showers, you can conserve hot water by attaching a flow restrictor. These devices reduce the amount of water that comes out of the head without sacrificing a hard spray. In one test, a $16.95 device released an average flow of 2.1 gallons a minute, compared with a normal release of 8 to 10 gallons a minute. According to the DOE, such restrictors can save a family $24 a year in hot water costs.

Tune your furnace annually. Tests have shown that a one-fifteenth-inch layer of soot in a furnace can reduce efficiency by up to 50 percent. Just as an improperly tuned carburetor can waste gas in a car, an improper mixture of air and fuel can cause a furnace to use more oil or gas.

Insulate your basement. It's standard procedure to begin insulating a house with the attic, but it may be worth your time to consider insulating your basement, as well. If you have no basement, insulate the crawl space below your floors. Princeton University researchers found that 25 percent of the furnace heat in the houses they monitored stayed in the basement. If that area is not well insulated, you could be losing several hundred dollars worth of heat annually.

Close up those air leaks. Many people assume that most air leaks in a house occur around window and door frames. However, one Colorado researcher has found that the four major sources of air infiltration are the kitchen fan exhaust, the bathroom fan exhaust, the hole around the clothes dryer vent and the furnace flue. He also found that air flow could be reduced considerably by filling in the holes around each of these leaks. Not only is it a simple task, but it also enables a homeowner to learn where air is entering the house.

10

Look for heater helpers. You would be surprised how much lost heat can be recovered around a water heater. For instance, if you have an electric clothes dryer, you can pull the vent back into the house, put a stocking over the end to catch the lint, plug up the outside vent hole and let the dryer warm up the room while it is drying the clothes. Similarly, you might as well take advantage of any extra heat in your shower or bath water by letting it cool off in the tub before draining.

11

Consider a dishwasher. If you have a large family, a dishwasher is not the wasteful appliance many people believe it to be. To complete its cycle, it requires about 16 gallons of hot water, and you can usually do an entire day's dishes in one load. Conversely, if you wash your own dishes in a normal-sized sink, you probably use about 3½ gallons of water in the wash side and the same amount in the rinse side. If you eat three meals a day and use two sinks to wash and rinse water after each meal, this means you may be using an average of 42 gallons daily just to wash dishes. At average electric rates today, this means a cost of about 35 cents per day to cycle. If not, turn off your power after the rinse is completed and open the door to let air circulate around the dishes.

12

Eliminate the dry cycle. Many dishwasher brands include a heating element that speeds the drying process. If you wash your dishes in the evening, electric drying is unnecessary. Your machine may have a switch that shuts off the drying cycle. If not, turn off your power after the rinse is completed and open the door to let air circulate around the dishes.

13

Wash clothes at a cooler setting. According to the DOE, eliminating the "warm rinse" cycle on washing machines saves 23 percent of the energy required to run the machine. The Texas Power and Light Company adds that "if clothes are washed in 140-degree hot water with two 110-degree warm-water rinses, approximately 40 gallons of hot water is needed per load. That would require 160 percent more energy than if a cold-water rinse is used."

14

Have your thermostat checked. The Princeton energy researchers found that half of the thermostats in the community they studied were inaccurate by one or more degrees. According to their report, a one-degree error can add four percent to a fuel bill.

15

Switch off the air conditioner sump heater. Most central air conditioners contain a sump or crankcase heater that evaporates the moisture that might get into the compressor. This heater stays in operation all year long, even when the air conditioner is not in use. Most of these heaters draw between 50 and 75 watts of power, which means an added electrical charge of about $20 for all of the months when the machine sits idle. To turn off the heater during the winter, merely switch off the air conditioner circuit breaker. Be certain, however, to switch the breaker back on at least 24 hours before you activate the air conditioner. Otherwise, the air conditioner will be damaged.

16

Keep your refrigerator clean. Dusting off most appliances won't make them work better, but with refrigerators, such a procedure can be important. The coils in the back should be cleaned every other month. Dirty coils greatly reduce the machine's cooling ability. You should also periodically check how airtight the appliance is by putting a dollar bill between the gasket and the door. If the bill can be pulled out easily when the door is closed, replace the gasket.

17

Unplug that old refrigerator. If it is used only occasionally, or to store marginal items, the refrigerator relegated to the basement or garage may be costing you a bundle—up to $100 per year if its gasket is worn or the compressor is bad. If you have such an appliance, try unplugging it for a month and see if you notice any difference on your next bill.

18

Get rid of that large freezer. The high price of electricity these days is rapidly changing the cost-benefit calculations for large freezers. A group of energy consultants in Davis, California, found that freezers are so expensive to run that "the question should be raised as to whether the benefits of bulk food buying offset the costs of storage." A middle-sized freezer may cost up to $8 a month to operate, and the older it gets, the less efficient it becomes.

19

Douse those pilot lights. Federal studies have shown that the pilot lights on gas stoves may consume up to 30 percent of the fuel used by the stoves. Thus, if you don't cook often, you might be paying more for your pilot light fuel than you are for cooking. The pilots were originally put on stoves for convenience and safety, but if you're willing to re-light a burner with a match each time you want to use it—and are very careful not to leave the gas on without a light—you can save substantial money. Some stoves have adjustments that will cut off the pilots, but you shouldn't attempt to turn them off until you talk with your gas appliance dealer. If you use an oven spigot, you can also turn off that pilot. Or you can convert your gas stove to automatic electronic ignition. Conversion kits average about $40, but the payback should occur in less than three years.

20

Don't preheat the oven. In a project for the American Home Economics Association last year, researchers measured how much fuel it took to cook a hamburger in various ways. They found stovetop cooking to be the most economical. They also concluded that preheating an oven is more costly than cooking from a cold start. Therefore, avoid preheating whenever possible.

21

Eliminate the television "instant-on." Many tube-type television sets include a feature that enables the picture to appear instantaneously, the moment the set is switched on. While this avoids the 30-second warming up time, it also wastes electricity since the device remains on 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. This means an added cost of up to $25 a year in electricity for a family that uses its television six hours or less each day. If your set does not have a button to turn off the "instant-on," have a repairman do it.

22

Convert to fluorescent. For light fixtures that are in constant use, it makes good economic sense to convert to fluorescent bulbs. A double-bulb incandescent fixture that uses two 100-watt bulbs for ten hours a day, for example, costs about $36 in yearly electric bills. A fluorescent unit can provide a similar amount of light for $7.20. The $29 or so it costs to convert to fluorescent will be paid back in one year. Since constant switching on and off shortens the life of fluorescent bulbs, however, they should only be used in places where they will be left on for longer periods.

23

Cut your light wattage. Each time a bulb burns out, consider replacing it with one that has less wattage. You may be surprised how many bulbs in your house are too powerful. Every time you cut the wattage in half, you cut 50 percent off the utility bill for that particular fixture.

24

Use small appliances. The best way to decide whether or not to use one of those small cooking appliances you've stashed away in a cupboard is to compare its wattage label with that of your stove. If it is not unusual, for instance, for a full-sized oven to draw about 3,500 watts of power, while a small electric toaster oven uses only half that amount. With gas, the savings may not be as great.

25

Landscaping for energy. Some of the best energy-saving opportunities are found outside the house. In a test conducted on two identical houses in Nebraska, for example, researchers measured the amount of fuel needed to maintain an indoor temperature of 70 degrees. One of the houses was exposed to the wind, the other was protected by bushes. The results showed that the protected house used 23 percent less fuel than the unprotected house. In a similar Princeton study, a five-foot wooden fence, erected on the windward side of a house, reduced air infiltration by up to 30 percent. Other projects have demonstrated that the most effective place to set shrubs is a windbreak is upwind, at a distance from the house that equals 1½ to 2½ times the height of the building.

Downtown parking lot ministry in final session

The summer recreation program for children in the downtown area is in its second three weeks. Sponsored by the Niedringhaus United Methodist Church, the First United Presbyterian Church, and the St. Peter United Church of Christ, the program has averaged around 20 youngsters each day last week at St. Peter Church and so far this week at First Presbyterian.

The project will conclude next week at Niedringhaus Church. Led by adults from the three sponsoring churches the program is in session from 9-12 each weekday morning and consists of games and other activities that children can enjoy. Any child is welcome to attend, according to the Rev. Robert C. Landes, associate pastor at First Presbyterian.

Ruling creates new snag on ambulance call payments

By GARY SCHNEIDER

Press-Record Staff Writer
Continued service by Granite City Fire Department ambulances to the Quad-City area outside of the city limits may again be in jeopardy, due to a ruling by the Illinois Department of Public Aid that the city cannot legally collect from cities and townships the difference between actual expenses and the amount that Public Aid pays for ambulance calls.

Complicating the issue is a ruling by City Attorney Lance Callia that all ambulance runs outside the city must, at least, "break even," or Granite City taxpayers will be subsidizing ambulance service for Madison, Venice, Pontoon Beach and portions of Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships.

Granite City Fire Chief Don Parente said Mayor Paul Schuler plans to call for a meeting with representatives of those cities and townships in the next week or so to discuss some way the townships can help the city recover losses for Public Aid recipients transported by city ambulances from outlying areas to hospitals.

Mayor Schuler told the City Council Tuesday night that he is hopeful a "gentlemen's agreement" can be reached whereby the townships would reimburse the city for the amount the city has lost due to Public Aid ambulance losses in each area.

Favors possibly could include paving city streets adjacent to the townships or other cities, lending of equipment to the city for work, or other things which would reimburse Granite City taxpayers for losses incurred by ambulance service outside of the city limits.

Parente explained that ambulance service to Madison, for example, actually costs the city about $71 on each run for the trip, plus gasoline, insurance, overhead, upkeep of the ambulance and other costs.

Illinois Public Aid will only pay $40 for each ambulance call and will not allow the city to bill either the recipient or the outlying city or township for the remaining $31, Parente said.

"We have just been billing the cities and townships the difference, about $30 per run for Madison, and they have been reimbursing us."

However, on July 26, an official of the Public Aid Department came in and told us what we were doing was illegal and must be stopped immediately, or we would jeopardize payments to all Granite City Public Aid recipients," Parente said.

All of the outlying cities and townships in the Quad-City area, with the exception of Venice Township, have signed letters of agreement with Granite City for ambulance service.

The letters guarantee that the city will be reimbursed the difference between the actual expense of the ambulance service and the amount the city receives from the public aid, insurance or payments from the patient.

Venice Township has declined to sign an agreement, because the city has not included Eagle Park Acres and the Cloverleaf Addition in its service boundaries.

The issue was pointed out dramatically recently when an Eagle Park woman died, allegedly after she could not get an ambulance immediately, Parente said.

"When we set up our boundaries, we stopped at Second and McCambridge. We feel that to cover farther than that would be very expensive and time-consuming.

"We do not want to have ambulances out so long on a call that Granite City residents, who are paying the bills, are deprived of having an ambulance available," Chief Parente explained.

He said Granite City ambulances have made only six calls to Venice Township since the March 15 date when new agreements with the other townships and cities took effect. All six have been repaid by insurance or the individuals, so no bills have been sent to Venice Township thus far.

Nameoki Township Supervisor Harold Davis has told the Press-Record he feels some revisions in the contract with the city should be made in the near future.

He said the township is being billed for service to all Nameoki Township residents without regard where they were picked up.

"If a Nameoki Township resident falls down in the park across Madison Avenue from the hospital and the ambulance takes him or her to the emergency room, we get the bill. It seems to me that the Granite City ambulances would be making that call even if they were serving only the city," Davis said.

Parente said residency is used to determine who is responsible for the bill, but said the townships are not being charged for ambulance runs to their townships involving persons from outside of the Quad-City area.

"If there is a big accident on an Interstate in Nameoki or Chouteau Township, for example," he said, "and the people are not from the Quad-City area, or are from Granite City, the city will be responsible for collecting the bill. So, it all evens out, in the long run."

Police building is 45% finished

Unless the current laborer's strike is prolonged, the new Granite City police building between the main fire station and the post office should be completed on schedule, by late November, Dave Nolan, city coordinator for the building project, told the City Council Tuesday night.

Nolan reported that the construction is about 45 percent complete, and applications have been made for the remaining half of an Economic Development Administration grant that is being used to construct the building.

Cost over-runs, including change orders approved by the council Tuesday night, have increased the cost of the project from $913,493 to $923,646, a rise of $10,153, or 1.1 percent of the contract. "This is well within the expected over-run on a project of this size," Nolan commented.

M&W Architects & Engineers, who had prepared the specifications, to determine if the $1,738 worth of work was included in the original specifications.

Nolan reported that Jim Rennard, the architect for M&W, prepared the specifications, reported it was the specifications and the cost will need to be borne by either the contractor or subcontractor.

Letters on the issue have been turned over to the assistant city attorney, Irvin C. Slagter, in case additional disagreements on the question arise, he added.

At Nolan's request, the council approved change orders in construction totaling $2,982, including a larger pad for the radio tower costing $566 and four items of work and material to improve air openings in the basement ceiling, costing $1,466. Both were recommended as important for safety and structural reasons.

Another $750 was approved for the architects to separate contract work pertaining to the construction of a public parking area, which has been deleted due to limited funds.

The council also approved $200 for a bond to guarantee that the roof will not leak for 10 years. Geisler Roofing will be responsible for the first two years and the supplier will be responsible for the remaining eight years, under terms of the bond.

"Even with the severe weather this winter and the short delay due to a bricklayer shortage, the project is very close to being on schedule."

"No other delays have been encountered and no delays are foreseen for the near future, especially if the current contract negotiations among the various trade unions are resolved quickly," he added.

He said a disagreement over the installation of a conduit and box for the closed-circuit television system was referred to the Chouteau Town Board of Trustees Monday night voted to owe one month's pay to some elected officials until new tax funds are received, rather than to sell a tax anticipation warrant to meet the entire payroll.

The trustees were the only elected officials who have not been paid the entire amount due them.

June salaries were withheld for Supervisor Walter "Dick" Sparks, Town Clerk Patricia Polley, Tax Collector Cletus Bedwell, Assessor Charles Lexow and Highway Commissioner Wilfred "Bud" Eberhardt.

Delay in paying 5 Chouteau officials

The Chouteau Town Board of Trustees Monday night voted to owe one month's pay to some elected officials until new tax funds are received, rather than to sell a tax anticipation warrant to meet the entire payroll.

The trustees were the only elected officials who have not been paid the entire amount due them.

June salaries were withheld for Supervisor Walter "Dick" Sparks, Town Clerk Patricia Polley, Tax Collector Cletus Bedwell, Assessor Charles Lexow and Highway Commissioner Wilfred "Bud" Eberhardt.

In early July, the board decided to wait for tax disbursements to pay the officials for June, but not enough money had been received this week to pay both the June and July salaries.

The board decided to use the small amount received from County Collector George Musso to pay July salaries for all employees and officials, but to continue to owe the five officials for June.

"Additional taxes are expected any day and we will get paid for June as soon as they arrive," Mrs. Polley explained.

Awards at summer recreation centers

The Granite City Park District's summer recreation program ended last week with the annual "Pantomime Follies" and with presentation of awards for sports achievements, most cooperative students and team achievements.

Webster School was presented a large trophy for having the best regular-season softball record of 10-0 and Niedringhaus School was honored for the playoff championship. Also given trophies were Webster for second in the playoffs and Nameoki for third.

Logan School won the award for the best pantomime presentation after a skit representing the popular singing group, Sha-Na-Na, which utilized 1950s and 1960s music, dress and hair styles and other techniques to "recreate" a rock-and-roll concert of that time.

Purple awards were given to one student from each playground center. The youngsters were selected by their instructors as the most cooperative, helpful and polite students.

Winners were Bill Griffith for Niedringhaus, Liz Childrens for Webster, Heather Tolbert for Wilson, Adam Schneider for Nameoki, Tammy Meyers for Lincoln, Plance Community Center and David Kuhn for Logan.

Franchise advice—verification, caution

Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott is advising those who are considering the purchase of a business opportunity, such as a franchise or a distributorship, to use caution and follow some guidelines before making a final decision.

Scott said his Franchise Division monitors business offers to determine if any of the exhibitors have a history of deceptive practices and if the franchise exhibitors are properly registered with the state.

2. Check with the attorney general's franchise division at 500 S. 2nd St., Springfield, Ill., to see if any legal action is pending against the company and if the company is properly registered with the state.

3. Require the seller to provide names of individuals who have previously purchased a similar business opportunity.

4. Make sure the seller of the business can substantiate all promises of potential earnings and any claim of association with a famous brand-name product.

5. Investigate carefully the cost connected with the purchase of the business to make, sure there are no hidden fees.

Finally, if an individual purchases a business and the sellers are not fulfilling the contract agreements he can contact the attorney general's office immediately and should save all brochures and advertisements given by the salesmen.

'Hoppers' numerous

By WAYNE B. SIEFERT
Area Adviser, Horticulture
This year looks like a great year for grasshoppers. Swarms of grasshopper nymphs are common in ditches and pastures.

Your garden, flowers and small shrubs can be a comfortable hideout for a reavenous crowd of hoppers.

When dry weather spoils the good supply in nearby fields and ditches, a steady stream can keep you supplied with fishing bait or trouble.

If you aren't a fisherman you can easily control grasshoppers in your garden and flowers by spraying with carbaryl (Sevin) or malathion.

One application will control a variety of other insects as well as grasshoppers to maintain attractive foliage and normal growth.

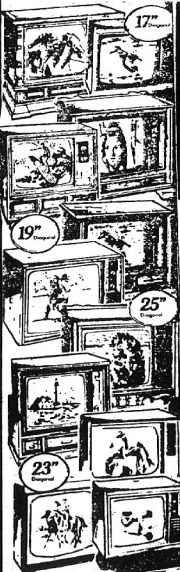

Another application may be necessary if hoppers begin to migrate. Concentrate both applications on the edge of the garden and spray nearby weeds, fences and ditches.

Clematis thrives when bone meal is used at planting time and added each year as part of annual care.

New plantings should include two cups of bone meal in the soil and a modest application each year.

One important aspect of using bone meal is the effect on soil acidity. Clematis suffers in acid soil.

During transplanting, a common practice is adding peat moss to improve drainage. Bone meal effectively neutralizes the acid effect of peat moss to combine good drainage with a neutral or "sweet" soil.

No left turn at parking garage

The City Council of Granite City on Tuesday night studied proposals to alleviate a pedestrian hazard between the new parking garage at St. Elizabeth Hospital and the hospital entrance.

The aldermen agreed to post "no left turn" signs for traffic leaving the garage onto 21st Street, thus directing all traffic to the east on 21st.

Iowa in the 2000 block has been changed from one-way to the north to one-way the other direction, which will give motorists access to 20th Street by using either Iowa Street or Lee Avenue, it was noted.

Motorists also may turn northeast on Monroe Street to gain access to East 23rd Street. The council took under advisement a request from the hospital to establish a pedestrian crosswalk between the parking garage pedestrian exit and the hospital entrance. Granite City Street Superintendent Lionel Portelli said he had discussed the matter with hospital officials and concluded, "There is a real problem there."

"We suggested a diagonal crosswalk to the hospital driveway, which would allow wheelchairs and the handicapped to avoid the curb, and then we could put up signs for cars to stop for pedestrians," Portelli also said, planning for a pedestrian crosswalk over the street from the garage to the hospital are being studied by hospital officials, but the cost may be prohibitive at this time. The crosswalk issue was referred to the city council's traffic committee for further consideration.

Some mayors back tax limit petition drive

Peoria Mayor Richard E. Carver is heading a group of Illinois mayors for the "Thompson proposition." The list is expected to number more than 100 mayors, Governor James R. Thompson said Monday.

During a press conference to outline the mayors' support, Mayor Carver said, "People might find it unusual for a group of mayors to be supporting a proposal to have people vote on whether they want to limit state and local taxes and spending. 'You might expect all the mayors to be lined up against such a proposal, which potentially could limit their ability to raise the funds needed to run their local governments, but that is not the case here.'"

"As mayor of Peoria, I speak for many of my fellow mayors when I say that something must be done to restore the people's confidence that their government is responsive to their needs."

"Our entire system of revenue-raising deserves to be looked at in Illinois carefully, methodically and with an eye to its fairness for all taxpayers. 'Gov. Thompson's proposal is logical and makes the most sense of any. We need to give Illinoisans an opportunity to say 'yes' or 'no' to the large question of whether they want us to take a logical, comprehensive look at taxes and spending and limit them in our laws and constitution. 'A meat ax approach is not what is proposed. The proposition would provide a calm, comprehensive and effective means of reviewing taxation and spending, with an eye toward imposing logical limitations, if that is what Illinois taxpayers want,' the mayor said."

A petition drive is in progress. Announced as members of Illinois Mayors for the Thompson Proposition were the mayors of 36 municipalities. The governor said more members will be added later. Mayor Carver said the board of directors of the Illinois Municipal League has committed that organization in support of the Thompson proposition and will issue its own statement in support of it soon.

Cyclist faces 5 traffic charges

In pursuit of a motorcycle at 6 p.m. Monday, four Granite City police vehicles and a Union Beach squad car were utilized in a chase that started on Victory Drive and ended on Lake Drive in Pontoon Beach. Samuel J. Sharp, 20, 44 Villa Drive, was charged with five traffic violations when halted by officers near the entrance to the Madison County Nature and Bicycle Trail on Lake Drive.

Citations were issued against the cyclist for fleeing and attempting to elude police, not having a valid registration, reckless driving, violation of classification (license-motorcycle) and failure to stop while emerging from an alley onto Victory Drive. He is to appear for a hearing by Sept. 15.

Intruder flees

Mrs. Jackie Teaman, of the 2400 block of Benton St., reported being awakened at 5 a.m. Tuesday by the noise of flower pots falling from the window sill onto the floor. She saw a man trying to enter the apartment through the bedroom window. He apparently had pushed over the pots.

Mrs. Teaman yelled at the intruder, who jumped back outside the window and fled. He was wearing blue jeans and tennis shoes. A screen had been removed and the window pushed open to gain access to the dwelling.

TAKE WALLET IN PURSE

A beige and maroon neoprene wallet, containing $15 cash, credit cards and miscellaneous papers, was taken from the purse of Patricia Keuck of Fairview Heights, an employee at the Madison County Department of Public Aid, 16 N. Main St., Village, she reported Monday. The purse was under her desk.

Graduation plus 10

Q. I have been reading about all the student loans that were guaranteed by the government and not repaid. Exactly how long does a student have to repay a loan, and when do they have to start repaying the money?

A. Payments normally begin between nine months to one year after the student graduates or leaves school. There is a time payment limit of up to 10 years in which to repay the loan. The yearly amount of the payment must be at least $30, unless the lender has agreed otherwise.

Q. I think 'Fantasy Island' is an excellent show but I'm curious. Where are the exterior scenes filmed? — L.B.

A. Those beautiful scenes are filmed at the Los Angeles County Arboretum and nearby Catalina Island.

Q. Could you tell Rock Hudson's real name? Is it really Rock or do they just call him that on television? — S.N.

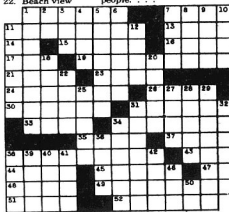

A. Rock Hudson's real name is Roy Fitzgerald.

Handwriting—Slant shows outgoing nature

I'm 56, have raised my family, and now want to get a job. I have no reservations about my abilities. I keep myself well-groomed, am an average weight, and look younger than my age. I feel I need to meet new challenges in my life. What are my chances at my age? — V.A.

Dear V.A.: Chances are 100 percent in your favor. In fact, you'd add extra spice to any job. Your friendly, outgoing nature, seen in the slant of your writing, your concern for others, seen in the word endings along the line, combine with your tact and diplomacy, seen in the gentle tapering of m's, n's, and l's, to make you a very gracious person.

Your sense of humor, seen in the beginning flourishes on m and n, adds sunshine and lifts the burden. You take your work seriously, not yourself, and this is an unbeatable combination.

You still have your enthusiastic spirit, seen in the long, strong crossing. This is the zest that sells you and what you can do.

Your age is no barrier. You have the personality, the drive, the know-how. You are believable, and this is an asset to any employer.

Just remember, no apologies about your age. Your charm lies in your maturity. It has to pay credit to your added birthdays, and special heed to experience awards.

Meet new challenges

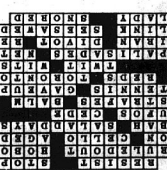

AN UNUSED POKER CHIP RACK MAKES A DANDY SPOOL HOLDER FOR THE SEAMSTRESS. GIVE A CHIP OVER THE HOLE IN THE BOTTOM OF EACH SLOT AND PUT THE SPOOLS IN EITHER VERTICALLY OR HORIZONTALLY, ACCORDING TO SIZE. THE RACK WILL SPIN TO AID IN SELECTION AND THREAD CAN BE PULLED FROM SPOOLS IN THE RACK.

10 years later and beyond...

ALVIN LEE - Rocket Fuel (RFO) - The virtuoso rock guitarist who steamed up the '60s with Ten Years Later is back with a new band that is in a vibrant rock-blues groove. Lee said away from Ten Years Later with fans chanting from the "hits" threatened to lock him into a pattern of musical repetition. The "new" Lee is as musically engaging as ever.

RARE EARTH - Band Together (Mowtown) White soul sextet has put together a fine album that ranges from funk blues to a slick production of the Bee Gees' tune, "Warm Ride." Lead singer Peter Hoebel's gravelly voice contrasts beautifully against the group's smooth harmonies.

Untended pools threaten to children

Q. Our neighbors have fished their 2-year-old out of their swimming pool twice. Both times there was no one watching him closely enough. I'm scared to death about this danger, but apparently they aren't. It is an unfenced pool, and wide open not only to their little boy but also to other neighborhood children, including mine.

I want to take some action without alienating our neighborhood friendship. What do you suggest?

A. A quick call to your town or city office that supervises zoning, building permits and related activities may get the job done.

Most communities require fences around pools. I hope yours does.

If not, you might want to get together with other parents who share your concern, and select a few of you to represent the rest in talking about this matter with the parents of that 2-year-old. It could, of course, threaten a friendship. But that's hardly as important as saving a child's life. Hopefully your town hall or cooperative neighborhood approach will accomplish both of your goals, with your eye obviously on the major target of child safety.

Special voter registration

A series of special voter registration periods for those qualified to vote in the Nov. 7 general election between Aug. 12 and Oct. 10, the last day of registration, was announced last week by County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

County clerk deputies will be on duty at special locations throughout the Quad-City area and the county to accept new registrations or changes in the records of voters presently registered.

To qualify as a voter in the Nov. 7 balloting, a person must be 18 years of age on or before Nov. 7, must be a U.S. citizen and must have lived 30 days in the state and 30 consecutive days in the precinct in which the voter lives.

Voters already registered are being asked to check their certificate or registration (pink card) to be certain it bears the current address. If it does not, the registration may be corrected by writing the new address on the reverse side of the card and mailing it to the county clerk's office.

If a voter has lost the pink card, he may obtain a duplicate by a request to the county clerk's office, Miss Bowles said.

In addition to being the last day for registration, Oct. 10 will be the first day a voter may apply for a ballot under the absentee voting act, the last day for the transfer of a registration and the last day that absent electors in United States service or their dependents may make application for an absentee ballot.

Nov. 2 will be the last day to apply by mail for an absentee ballot, and Nov. 6 will be the last day to apply in person to cast an absentee ballot.

Film showing at Faith Chapel on Saturday night

A Distant Thunder, a Mark IV Pictures Inc. production, will be presented at Faith Chapel General Baptist Church on Saturday, Aug. 5, at 7 p.m., according to the Rev. James McNeely, pastor of the church located at 664 Ashland Ave., Mitchell.

A Distant Thunder, a seventy-eight minute color film, is a sequel to Mark IV Pictures' 1973 release, A Thief In The Night. It begins where A Thief In The Night ended.

Patty, the leading character in A Thief In The Night, is among a large number of people held prisoner because they have not received the Mark of the Beast. Since the day Patty awoke and found Jim, her husband, had disappeared, she has suffered grief, loneliness, hunger, and fear because of the evil one that works for the control of the world. Patty and her two friends, Wanda and Sandy, escape the attention of the authorities for a time. When Wanda and Sandy attempt to help an elderly man, they are arrested by an armed patrol. The girls succeed in warning Patty that his hiding place has been discovered. Patty makes a daring attempt to outwit the soldiers sent to seize her. Audiences are thoroughly engrossed with her predicament.

The film answers many of the questions raised by other recent motion pictures. Events foretold in the Bible as part of the Great Tribulation are vividly portrayed in A Distant Thunder, the minister added.

Agency stresses human relations

A special training program designed to enhance human relations has been initiated as part of a continuing effort to improve communications between Bi-State Development Agency's black and white employees, according to Barry M. Locke, executive director.

"This program is a vital part of the overall affirmative action goals of the agency, which employs 2,229 people, of which 56.5 percent of all bus operators and 30 percent of the management staff are minorities, compared to 17.4 percent of the overall Bi-State regional population.

"Greater sensitivity toward women employees will also be encouraged through this program, as 15.4 percent of all bus operators and more than 30 percent of management employees are women," Locke said.

Two St. Louis consultant firms with special expertise in the area of interpersonal relations are conducting the month-long training program at Bi-State offices.

The firms, Proud Partners, Inc., and Dice Cower & Associates, are working with selected groups of first-line management employees with supervisory responsibilities, helping them understand personal and racial differences. The four-hour workshops are specifically tailored to maximize understanding.

Role by Linda Parish in play

Linda Parish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Parish of Granite City, has been cast in the Gilbert and Sullivan musical, "Iolanthe," the final production at the Beacon Hill Summer Theater in Point Lookout, Mo.

Beacon Hill is an extension of the Speech and Drama Department at the School of the Ozarks College. Miss Parish is currently a sophomore at the college, majoring in speech and theater education.

In "Iolanthe," a musical satire on government (a twist) she is portraying "Tee-Hee," an alien from the planet Aries.

This is Miss Parish's second role in Beacon Hill productions this summer.

"Iolanthe" is being presented at the Beacon Hill Theater July 26-29 and Aug. 2-5. Reservations are being made by calling or writing the Beacon Hill Summer Theater at the School of the Ozarks in Point Lookout.

between supervisors and their employees, Locke said.

Conducted by Bi-State's Affirmative Action Department and Training Section, the program includes varied discussions of human relations myths, measurements of job performance, employee expectations, and grievance handling.

Role-playing and cultural conditioning self-analysis are being utilized by program instructors, who are urging employees to share their opinions and experiences during the sessions, explaining that differences must be acknowledged and understood before communication can be improved.

Bi-State participants also are being asked to evaluate the effectiveness of the program and offer suggestions for future workshops of this nature.

Locke said the human relations program will be evaluated for possible expansion to all levels of the agency, to further improve employees' attitudes and actions in order to enhance their work environment.

Classes on childbirth

Sponsored by the Rap Room at SEVUE, the class will meet from 2 until 4 p.m. in the multipurpose room of the Commons Building, located at the Tower Lake housing complex on the campus.

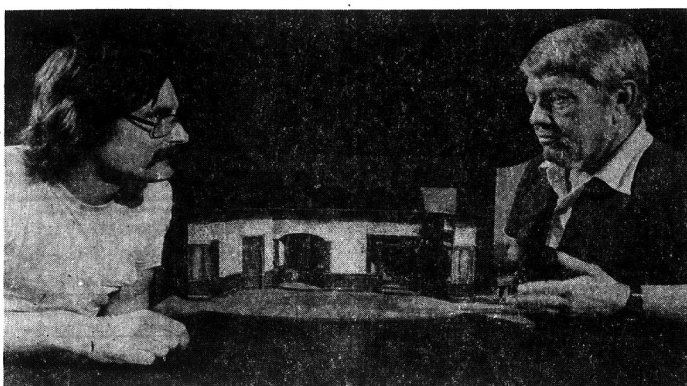

Women participants must be in their third trimester to enroll. Instructor Nina Gansmann describes Lamaze as "a method that utilizes education, concentration and relaxation to decrease anxiety and fear."

"The goal will be a safe labor and delivery, both physically and psychologically, for the baby and parents."

Classes will include basics in anatomy and physiology, relaxation techniques, breathing methods and physical conditioning. Fee for the workshop is $25. Participants are to bring a blanket or sleeping bag and two pillows.

The Rap Room (692-3764) is a student and community referral service.

By TOMMYE WALTER

Long before the curtain rises on the George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart comedy, "You Can't Take It With You," an opening night Thursday, Aug. 10 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, a lot of preparation has taken place.

At SEVUE, the class will meet from 2 until 4 p.m. in the multipurpose room of the Commons Building, located at the Tower Lake housing complex on the campus.

Women participants must be in their third trimester to enroll. Instructor Nina Gansmann describes Lamaze as "a method that utilizes education, concentration and relaxation to decrease anxiety and fear."

shop. Bogdan has not only painted the tomatoes, he has dulled them somewhat to give them more life.

During the course of the play, Essie will dance into the dining room carrying the plate of tomatoes. The character portrayed has been taking ballet lessons for eight years and has not progressed beyond the introductory stage, nor will she ever do any better.

In fact, none of the zany family will make any ripples in the river of success. For one thing, nobody in the family works.

Essie's mother, Penny, writes plays simply because of a typewriter was delivered to the house by mistake about the same time that Essie began her ballet lessons.

In one corner of the scene shop stands an old iron printing press which will be used as a prop in the production. The press is neither old nor iron.

Bogdan created the press from wood after looking at a snapshot of one. From the audience, the wooden replica will look like a real one.

Sound unbelievable? But no harder to believe than that the expensive-looking "glass" chandelier sitting on the table. It has been fashioned from single plastic light fixtures.

And the "stained glass" window destined for the foyer was recently sheets of plastic jell.

Where are the students who will be playing the characters in the zany household? Right now, most of them are upstairs attending a workshop on comedy.

Teaching them the finer points of acting funny is Raye Birk, visiting director from the University of California, Berkeley. Birk will direct the student production.

On stage, two members of the stage crew hang the curtains that Vilhauser has just shortened. They fill.

Lights focus on a sky cyclorama behind the set. "I'll plan the lighting when I see what you're with the vestibule," Nancy Miller, lighting designer for the play, says to Vilhauser.

Miss Miller is a senior at the university, majoring in theater. As a stagehand moves off the actual stage set designed by Sweezy and developed by Texier. Performances of the Kaufman and Hart comedy are scheduled for Aug. 10, 11 and 12 at 8:15 p.m. and Aug. 13 at 2:30 p.m. in the Communications Building theater.

Computer question for Evel Knievel—What's your angle?

"How many buses do you want to jump?" The question prints out across the small screen attached to the desk-top computer.

The student types in the number eight from the keyboard under the picture.

"What is the angle of the ascent?" comes the next query.

Sixty miles per hour. Momentarily, a small dot representing an Evel Knievel type motorcycle bounces up over the imaginary buses, pauses at the peak and drops.

The computer flashes its congratulations for a good jump.

An answer of two degrees less may produce a call for the nearest ambulance and a request for the student to try again if he is able.

What appears to be the uninitiated to be a game, is a new approach to teaching scientific principles.

Instead of spending hours wrestling with algebraic formulas representing the variables of distance, incline and speed, the student gets instant answers for his estimates, and works back to the principles represented by the equation.

After three crashes, he knows faster means farther.

The graphic, game-like models developed as demonstrators by SIUE Associate Professor John A. Spencer will be adapted for freshman chemistry classes this year by Henry D. Drew, associate professor of chemistry and an admitted computer buff.

Under a $6,000 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation matched by $10,000 from the university, Drew will set up Exper-Sim, an experimental simulation model for chemistry.

In the demonstrator model, instead of writing a motorcycle over buses, the student may see a simulated beaker with a calibrated bulb poised above it.

By answering questions flashed across the screen, he fills the theoretical beaker to the volume and concentration he picks.

With each touch of the keyboard space he has the student adds titrate to the beaker, drop by drop, until the indicator colors the classic acid-base experiment.

He reads the bottom of the bubble in the tube, uses the total volume in the beaker, and learns the same chemical principle of acid-base equilibria that other students discover after three hours in the lab.

"Computers will not replace actual hands-on experience with the test tubes," Drew emphasized, "but they will expand the student's experiences and make more actual experiments available to him."

"It is educational to re-invent the wheel but it is necessary to do so to get the principle across," Drew said.

For the chemistry department, it will mean more teaching using less time, less lab space and fewer pieces of equipment.

Using existing terminals, Exper-Sim students will learn to ask computers the right questions to get the answers they need to make the appropriate analysis.

"It's like the old mashed potato study," Drew said. "They must realize that if offenders in prison all loved mashed potatoes concluded that a preference for the vegetable indicated sexual perversion. He did not bother to consult the larger number of mashed potato lovers or haters outside the prison."

"Students will have to know what they are about," he said. "They will learn to design each experiment with appropriate questions for the mashed potato lovers and haters, and to analyze the data they collect in and out of the prison."

"The program, including models on solubility and reaction rate, is also designed to introduce freshmen to computers."

"The machine is a real barrier most students have to overcome," according to Drew. "They must realize that it is really a stupid machine that will do only what they tell it to."

So, how many milliliters do you want in the beaker? And, Evel, what's your angle?

World steel talks are praised by McBride

President Lloyd McBride of the United Steelworkers of America (USWA) has hailed word from the chief U.S. trade negotiator at Geneva that an international steel committee is being formed to deal with the steel import problem.

The development holds forth the "prospect" of developing international steel agreement (ISA) that the union has been urging as a long-range, multi-lateral approach to the steel import situation, McBride said.

He said he hopes the new approach to the import problem will protect jobs of USWA members in the basic steel industry "and do so within an international climate of cooperation."

Announcement of formation of the committee was made in Geneva by President Jimmy Carter's special trade representative, Ambassador Robert Strauss, who was in Geneva for trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The committee will be formed under the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which is made up of representatives from Western European countries, Japan, Australia and the U.S.

Non-OECD steel producing countries will be invited to be part of the committee.

Strauss said in Geneva that an international steel committee "should help to develop common perspectives regarding emerging problems, and establish multi-lateral objectives and guidelines for government policies."

He also said it would "contribute to a new international climate of understanding under which current problems could be more easily solved."

McBride, formerly the union's Granite City Sub-District director, said problems facing the steel industry are "global in causes and, therefore, the remedies must be multi-lateral — although each country will maintain the right to implement its own laws against unfair or injurious trade."

McBride said the USWA "intends to cooperate fully in an advisory capacity" with the government when the committee is established.

Youth on auto hood arrested

An off-duty police officer, observing an auto going past his house at high speed with a youth riding on the front hood and another "hanging" from a window, caused the car from Dogwood Avenue onto Wilson Avenue at 10:15 p.m. Monday.

On Fortune Drive, four youths, 15 and 16 years old, alighted from the vehicle and attacked two boys, 14 and 15, riding bicycles.

The off-duty policeman broke up the melee and another officer called to the scene took the four from the auto into custody.

Three were charged with disorderly conduct and the fourth youth was charged with reckless driving, having an improper muffler on the auto and disorderly conduct.

Two were released on notices to appear, one was released to his father upon payment of $55 cash bond, and the driver was released to his parents on a notice to appear.

John 14:2... "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You may rest assured, everything that Jesus Christ ever spoke was the truth.

He declared of himself, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Have no doubts nor fears concerning His words. If He said, "In my Father's house are many mansions," believe it — they are there!

How can we believe the word of someone we have not seen, nor met? A very excellent way is to examine what they have already spoken and see if it really happened. So God has given us His written word, the Holy Bible, plus many, many generations of people who will testify, "He is true, trust Him!"

No matter where we go in life, how far we roam, there is just something about belonging somewhere, having roots, having a home. Feel the impact of Christ's words, "I prepare a place for you." A home, with love — God's love — for eternity. It can be yours for the asking.

Go ahead, ask Him, today.

Many prison riot causes but more space would be helpful

The slaying of three prison guards during July 22 rioting at Pontiac did not constitute the first such deaths in Illinois prison history. A previous multiple-death occurrence involved a Granite City inmate. In view of the increasing overcrowding of aging and inadequate facilities, it is a wonder that the state has been able to recruit as many employees as it has for the still insufficient staffs.

Because the physical facilities and customary procedures result in much close contact between the throngs of prisoners and the far outnumbered guards, it seems especially cruel that the U.S. Supreme Court has thrown so many roadblocks in the path of state capital punishment laws. Without the death penalty as a deterrent, many long-term prisoners have no hesitation about harming guards, knowing that there is little more that authorities can do other than to continue keeping them behind bars.

With rehabilitation of prisoners never having achieved more than mixed results, officials in recent years have stressed that penitentiaries at least can physically remove from society those who have a pattern of violent conduct. But the whole concept breaks down when inmate populations grow too large for the space and there is inadequate staffing.

A chilling picture of the hazards for both employees and inmates was painted by Ernest Morris, who retired Friday as warden of the Stateville prison in Illinois after a 27-year career as a prison official.

"In the last year, half my top command staff quit in disgust or fear. Since Pontiac (one of three guards' deaths), two of my guards quit at the urging of their families. I don't blame them. It's rough in here and getting rougher."

"I've got residents (prisoners) getting stabbed every week. I've got residents subjected to repeated homosexual attacks. I've got both residents and guards getting extorted daily by prisoner gangs."

Profound moral issues raised by birth of Louise Brown

Post-Dispatch — Man has released the sun's fire from the atom, walked the surface of the moon and now has successfully conceived human life outside the womb.

The first event was an end of innocence, for henceforth mankind has lived with the knowledge that certain of its works must never be used if the world is to avoid destruction.

The second was a supreme triumph of technology and a moment of high poetry. The third, which led last week to the birth at Oldham, England, of a baby named Louise Brown, marks the beginning of a new era; we know for certain that life can be created in the laboratory, and the practical and moral implications from this magnificent, troubling achievement are immense.

The skill that enabled a team of British doctors to combine in a laboratory dish the egg and sperm from Louise's parents, to incubate the fertilized egg as it divided, and to place the embryo in the mother's body at the time where the pregnancy was successfully carried to term — promises hope for millions of sterile women —

Collinsville Herald — Different isn't always better.

The State Department of Transportation has too many places to spend construction money to squander any of it on an improvement that will make things worse. That's what the proposed "improvement" of the Route 40-157 intersection seems to do.

It would close off the 157 exit onto St. Louis Road in order to eliminate the hazardous left turn off St. Louis Road onto 157 going south.

The pavement is there. It wouldn't cost anything to make the ramp one-way going onto St. Louis Road. If signing could be rigged up, the right from St. Louis Road onto 157 could be kept, too, eliminating only the dangerous left turn.

The city already contemplates cutting off Walnut Drive, to prevent the dangerous exit onto 157 which is "blind" to 157 drivers coming over the overpass. That won't cost the state anything.

A lot of traffic control lights will be

"If I had my way, I'd keep them on deadlock (since the Pontiac episode, confined to their cells 24 hours a day without showers or clean clothes) for at least three more months. If people are going to act like animals, then we should treat them like animals. I feel just like a zookeeper trying to tame and train, and getting my arm bit off when I try. We should take the name Stateville down and call this place the Brookfield Zoo."

"I don't buy those things about hot weather, overcrowding and understaffing. It's just the kind of people who are coming into prisons nowadays. Normal human beings don't slaughter other human beings. They have no respect for authority or regard for human life."

Among a prison population of 2,300, about 500 live in voluntary, permanent "deadlock" so other prisoners cannot get at them, Morris said, noting that the majority of inmates were being convicted for property offenses a decade or two ago but now largely are being sent to prisons due to violent crimes.

The warden adds that if all the 248 guards were reliable he could have "made do" with an inadequate number. But he thinks that many of the guards also are members of prisoner gangs and bring in contraband drugs as well as carrying out other orders from imprisoned gang leaders.

No easy solutions are apparent, but it would appear that less overcrowding could not help but contribute to some improvement.

Perhaps a slight "ray of light" is U.S. District Judge J. Walde Ackerman's ruling at Springfield on Tuesday against halting construction of a new medium-security prison that is being built at Centralia. Opponents represented by former Governor Dan Walker had sought a time-consuming federal environmental impact study.

although not in the immediate future, to be sure.

The time and prohibitive expense of the procedure will keep it from common usage for several years. Still, the baby is living proof that what scientists have long speculated upon is now possible.

But in pursuing the possible, religious leaders are asking, is man treading recklessly into the realm of God's works or happily fulfilling a divine commandment? Faith and science again find themselves at an intersection.

And quite apart from religion, there are profound moral, ethical and even legal issues raised by the birth of Louise Brown.

Is there a danger that society, in the interests of promoting certain physical or mental qualities, will someday impose selective rules or standards for reproduction in the laboratory? And what is to be the consequence of failure in the laboratory and where in that event is the liability to fall?

These and other questions deserve thoughtful attention in the time remaining before what happened in Oldham no longer seems a miracle.

needed to manage the revised arrangements. It would be interesting to see if traffic lights wouldn't solve the problems without the expense of reconstruction. They would solve the problems for Martha Manning Company, which in the new plan will wind up with an east-only exit.

Martha Manning is a major employer, giving jobs to about 400 people — the type of industry many towns dream of, asking no tax breaks, no public subscriptions to woo it, no special public facilities. Martha Manning deserves consideration.

A traffic "improvement" that louses Martha Manning up and costs the state a lot of money ought to make the IDOT planners ask themselves "Isn't the present arrangement workable if we tinker with lights a bit?"

The heavy traffic on 157 ought to lighten a few years hence anyway, because I-255 will handle most of the through traffic a half-mile or so west of the intersection we're talking about.

By RICHARD L. LESHIER
President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce
During the long fight over the proposed federal Consumer Protection Agency, we insisted there are better ways to help the consumer than establishing a bureaucracy in Washington. We named a number of them.

Since 1975, we have been trying to get an effective consumer redress program adopted at the state level. We are continuing that effort and expanding it to include the federal government as well as we're making progress at both levels.

The U.S. Senate just passed a bill, S. 957, which embodies the heart of our program. The House is starting hearings and we have appeared there to support the bill, as we did in the Senate.

This legislation has attracted support from a broad range of interest groups representing nearly all points of the political spectrum. Included are: The Carter Administration, the American Arbitration Association, the American Bar Association, Consumers Union, the Council of Better Business Bureaus, the National Conference of Governors, the National League of Cities, and Public Citizen — a Ralph Nader group.

The theory behind our approach is that the best place to settle consumer problems is where the consumer is, rather than in Washington. To make such settlements easier, we urge all businesses to do certain things. Among the most important:

1. Make warranties, contracts and directions as simple and easy to understand as possible.

2. Make sure the consumer knows who to talk to within the company when he — or she — has a complaint.

3. Provide for an impartial third party to mediate disputes that cannot be settled directly between the company and the consumer.

Most companies value good customer relations and many have made great strides toward eliminating consumer dissatisfaction. But of course, there are always a few rotten apples in the barrel.

Therefore, when all else fails, we think the consumer should go to court to secure his rights. By doing so, he performs service both for himself and for the reputable business people of his community.

Unfortunately, the quality and availability of small claims courts vary greatly around the country.

In some places, there are no small claims courts; in others, they are inaccessible; in still others, they function more as collection agencies for unethical business people than as champions of justice.

But when the small claims court system works well, it is the closest, quickest and most decisive remedy for a consumer with a problem. So we are doing our best to get the states to establish good small claims courts.

We have even drafted a model small claims court act. It can be introduced in a state legislature and passed as-is. So far, Arkansas, Kentucky and Texas have established small claims court systems based on this model act.

The key to the model court act is its features designed to encourage use by consumers:

1. Court hours should include evenings and weekends, so working consumers can appear without having to take time off from their jobs.

2. Courts should be located conveniently to the consumer, perhaps in public libraries.

3. The clerk should help consumers file their claims.

4. Parties to the case should represent themselves. They may be advised by lawyers (court-appointed if necessary), but lawyers may not argue the case in behalf of a client.

5. The judge should help the contending parties to present their cases. Informal pursuit of justice should be the rule, rather than strict adherence to legal technicalities.

6. The purpose of the congressional legislation mentioned is to help the states set up these mechanisms. That's our objective, too.

Business people have two good reasons for favoring protection of consumer rights. First, they make a living by pleasing the consumer. And second, they are all consumers themselves.

Wide attention on task force in this state

Can state governmental spending be brought under effective control through more economical procedures and sounder business methods?

The question has focused attention on the Governor's Cost Control Task Force in Illinois. The Task Force says, "Yes, it can be accomplished."

The Governor's Cost Control Task Force, which on July 25 presented its final 206-page report to Governor James R. Thompson, was established as a not-for-profit private corporation in August 1977.

In response to a call by the governor to form a businessmen's study group to identify specific measures to control the cost of Illinois state government.

Gaylord Freeman, honorary chairman, The First National Bank of Chicago, served as chairman of the task force, which carried out an independent review of government operations.

The project involved over 80 loaned executives or business professionals and more than $420,000 in funding raised from the private sector. Participants included Granite City Steel's James E. Vargo.

The task force was organized as a partnership between the private sector and state government along lines successfully used in 25 other states.

In July 1977, Dr. Thompson had asked Freeman to form a private nonprofit corporation which would utilize private sector funds and personnel to carry out the project.

In August, the governor issued Executive Order 5 authorizing the task force to conduct its review.

All Executive Branch agencies — with the exception of the state's judicial branch — were assigned to the task force to participate in the program.

The task force focused on administration and management-related activities and not on the merits of specific policies or programs.

As a result, recommendations are generally confined to such areas as agency organizational structures, cost containment, accounting and financial control, personnel practices, productivity improvements, data processing, paperwork and management control.

The task force was divided into five teams. Each team was comprised of 10 to 25 loaned management specialists and was headed by an experienced chief executive who also served as a member of the executive committee.

The latter included: —Hugh M. Campbell, retired partner-in-charge, Chicago office, Price Waterhouse & Co.

He assumed responsibility for the regulatory and environmental agencies.

John D. Foster, president, John Foster and Associates and former vice-president, organization policy and planning, Marcor, Inc. undertook responsibility for the state agencies rendering human services.

William F. Murray, retired chairman of the board, Harris Bankcorp, Inc., and the Harris Trust and Savings Bank. He was responsible for the executive and central administrative offices.

Carl L. Seaman, retired vice-chairman of the Board, Sundstrand Corp. He headed the group studying the state's transportation activities.

And Lawrence J. Seidman, immediate past chairman and senior partner, Seidman & Associates, headed the law enforcement and economic development agencies.

The project was officially launched on Aug. 22, 1977, with a kickoff luncheon for the state's business leaders hosted by Gov. Thompson and Freeman.

State employees participated by providing requested data and offering their own suggestions for improvements. Once the basic research was completed, drafts of the resulting reports were reviewed by the executive committee. During the period from January to mid-June, report drafts were referenced, edited and rechecked for technical accuracy by the executive committee.

At the same time, major recommendations were discussed in general with appropriate agency heads. As a result of these activities, additional information and supporting documentation were obtained and incorporated into a final draft.

This document was then presented to the Illinois Fraud Prevention Commission, the task force also did not report on the Office of Internal Affairs or the Bureau of Special Investigation within the Department of Public Aid.

Of the more than 80 executives who participated in this comprehensive study and evaluation of state government operations, 76 were utilized on an essentially full-time basis.

The remaining vice-chairmen — William G. Karnes, retired chairman of Beatrice Foods; Leo H. Schoenheit, retired chairman of Marmon, Inc.; and Merle R. Vortz, retired vice-president of Caterpillar Tractor Co. — handled the fund-raising activities in the program.

Nearly 170 organizations throughout the state responded, supporting the program with either financial assistance, personnel or both.

1839, Lincoln was instrumental in having the structure built and was a frequent visitor there during the next 20 years.

The expansive House and Senate chambers are reproduced, complete down to the quilt pens and ledgers. Lincoln often studied in the law library off the giant rotunda of the building, and conducted business in its many offices. It was the Old State Capitol that Lincoln gave his famous "House divided" speech.

discussed in general with appropriate agency heads. As a result of these activities, additional information and supporting documentation were obtained and incorporated into a final draft.

This document was then presented to the Illinois Fraud Prevention Commission, the task force also did not report on the Office of Internal Affairs or the Bureau of Special Investigation within the Department of Public Aid.

Of the more than 80 executives who participated in this comprehensive study and evaluation of state government operations, 76 were utilized on an essentially full-time basis.

After Lincoln was assassinated, his body was brought back to Springfield. It laid in state at the Old State Capitol, then was taken to Oak Ridge Cemetery north of town for burial. Years later a massive stone monument was raised in his honor. Today visitors may enter the Lincoln Tomb State Monument and see where Lincoln and other members of his family are buried.

Schools eye potential tax limitations

Action to study effects of "possible expenditure and tax limits" was taken by the State Board of Education during the weekend as it met in Springfield.

"In light of the passing of the Jarvis Amendment (Proposition 13) in California and other kinds of limitations activity in other states," said State Board Member Bud Thompson of Prophetstown, Ill., "I think this is an appropriate time for the educational community to consider Illinois taxes that finance education."

The State Board will join with the Illinois Association of School Boards this summer and early fall in a study of the possible response of local boards of education to possible expenditure and tax limits.

The staff of the Illinois Office of Education, the administrative arm of the State Board, was directed to work with other organizations and persons concerned with these issues, also.

In other action, the State Board granted to Maywood School District 89 a one-year waiver to complete conformance with the State Board's desegregation rules, with instructions that the Maywood district submit a progress report by Dec. 1, 1978, and later submit additional plans and action to provide for further desegregation.

The Maywood plan on which the State Board acted will move fourth through sixth grade bilingual students from two high-minority enrollment schools (Melrose Park and Lincoln) and a special education class with high-minority enrollment to the two lowest-minority enrollment schools (Jane Adams and Stephenson) at the beginning of school this fall.

No busing will be involved in the movement of students, since the schools are within walking distance of each other.

MISSISSIPPI QUEEN (left), sister ship of the historic Delta Queen (right), the "infant" vessel made her first visit to this metropolitan area Saturday morning. The two-year-old, $24 million Mississippi Queen is called the world's largest and most luxurious riverboat. Thousands turned out to enjoy her calypso music and sternwheeler charm. They also were entertained by a bevy of puppeteers, dramatists and clowns performing on the levee near the Gateway Arch. The Mississippi Queen departed the same evening but will begin a regular schedule of summer trips here next year with the Arch area as the hub of seven-night cruises.

THE CARPENTER'S TOOLS, a drama and music group from Dallas, Tex. They will appear at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the First Assembly of God Church, 24th Street and Grand Avenue. The public is invited to attend the free presentation of short dramatic skits and music, performed by the 10 young men and women, ranging in age from 17 to 23 years old.

Crisis aid lists urged by O'Neal

Lieutenant Governor Dave O'Neal, during the eighth in a series of 13 statewide regional meetings, held Tuesday at the St. Clair County Building, Belleville, asked members of his Senior Citizens Legislative Forum to help him in creating a list of volunteer services for senior citizens, especially during crisis situations. Representatives of senior citizen organizations from Madison, Bond, Clinton, Monroe, Randolph, St. Clair and Washington counties attended. O'Neal said, "A special project which I believe deserves immediate attention by the regional forum committees was made painfully obvious to me during the severe winter just passed. So often, the winter weather of the Midwest causes unique hardships on both low-income families and the elderly who survive on fixed incomes.

"A special subcommittee was created by Governor James R. Thompson this winter to deal with these problems and I was appointed chairman. The members of this committee found it almost impossible to get a firm handle on charitable and volunteer services available to low-income families and the elderly.

"If each regional forum group could devise a plan of canvassing their respective areas and listing the nature of volunteer services available, especially during crisis situations, it would provide a greatly needed service."

"Primary purpose of the non-partisan forum is to obtain local input on the needs of the elderly from senior citizens themselves. In some areas there presently exists no direct communication of regular communication for the concerned senior."

Credit unions verify checks

Implementation of a new verification system for credit union share drafts greatly enhances the chances of their acceptance by merchants. Richard L. Ensweller, president of the Illinois Credit Union League, said this week.

More than 25,000 credit union members in Illinois utilize share draft accounts which allow them to draw out shares the same way they make withdrawals from a bank checking account.

Because of the swiftness of the system — the first share draft account in Illinois was opened in 1975 — some merchants have been reluctant to accept credit union share drafts, contending they had no way of verifying them, the league president said.

Now, all credit unions offering the share draft system can benefit from a nationwide computerized check verification and fraud detection system honored by more than 20,000 stores coast to coast, Ensweller said.

ROY ACUFF:
THE SMOKEY MOUNTAIN BOY
By Elizabeth Roe Schlappi
(Pelican Books)

Reviewed by David Butler, SILE Department of English Elizabeth Schlappi is both a scholar and a personal friend of Roy Acuff. Both roles are evident in her biography.

Schlappi, the scholar, footnotes copiously and provides apparatus rarely found in a biography — an index, a bibliography (with sub-headings A through L), two appendices containing dates and data on Roy's overseas tours and a listing (often with commentary) of every recording he ever made.

In the text, she emerges as friend and admirer, writing in a relaxed, conversational style suggestive of the running chatter of Roy Acuff himself. Clearly, the tape recorder has been a research tool. There is little editorializing, and the point of view is more Acuff's than Schlappi's.

The result, however, is delightful. Roy Acuff, super-star turned sage, recollects his 75 years, but is kept in check by Elizabeth Schlappi, the scholar, who is quick to point out — and usually to resolve — discrepancies of fact.

Thus, reassuring accuracy accompanies Acuff's account of his ancestry, adolescence, adulthood as a star, and ascendancy into a venerated position at the top of his profession approaching mythic proportions.

This new biography of the king of country music offers much to its readers, whether they approach it as admirers or as scholars.

Tax, spending performance debated in Senate campaign

By ROBERT ESTILL
Press-Record
Washington Bureau

Ever wonder if the cavemen, when selecting a tribal chief, debated if the leader was charging the tribe too many woolly mammoth hides and frittering away their hard-earned spears?

As election-year rhetoric rises, it certainly seems like the "tax and spending" issues have been around that long.

And if — as many politicians believe — Proposition 13 signifies that taxpayers' piety is peaking, the twin issues certainly are going to be the paramount pair in 1978.

Witness the Senate race between Republican incumbent Charles Percy, who would like to hold onto his seat for a third six-year term, and Democratic challenger Alex Seith, who thinks 12 years of Percy is too much with too little to show for it.

They, of course, are more civilized than Neanderthal man.

In this case, Garry South, Seith's campaign manager, is swinging the verbal club.

James Nowlan, Percy's campaign manager, is ducking by splitting fairly good-sized hairs.

South says Percy told "half-truths" in his second debate with Seith when Percy said he has voted for every tax decrease and opposed every tax increase.

As evidence of Percy's alleged deviation from candor, South cited several votes in recent years on proposals that would have directly affected federal income taxes.

In 1976, Percy voted against raising the exemptions from $750 to $1,000 per dependent, South said.

That same year, Sen. Percy voted against a proposal for "tax indexing" (adjusting tax brackets to offset the effects of inflation). But three years later Percy is all for tax indexing and has it as part of his "taxpayers agenda," South said.

Percy responds to South's charge that he told "half-truths" by saying he was only referring to federal income taxes.

He said he made it clear that he did vote for the Social Security tax increases, but he also emphasized he was one of six senators advocating giving voters a federal income tax credit for 10 percent of their Social Security payments.

As to the specific examples cited by South of how Percy's voting record betrays his statements at the debate, Percy bunched the ball to Nowlan.

"I think it is quite appropriate for my campaign manager to answer his campaign manager," Percy said.

Nowlan concedes that Sen. Percy made an "inadvertent misstatement" in his claim to have voted against all tax increases. He said they have tried to set the record straight by sending a letter to the League of Women Voters, which sponsored the second debate.

He said Percy was not trying to mislead the public because he did make it clear in the debate that he had voted for the Social Security tax increase.

But Nowlan splits more hairs than an inept hairdresser when he tries to justify the "misstatement" on Percy's federal income tax votes.

He said Percy was talking about his votes on tax cut "bills," not amendments.

Nowlan blithely dismissed the votes on amendments by saying there have been "literally hundreds of tax cut amendments" and that "taxpayers are concerned about the final legislative product," the bill. As a former state lawmaker, Nowlan in his dismissal of votes on amendments — which can drastically revise bills — borders on the absurd.

He also charges Seith with guilty of some unfair and inaccurate statements about Percy's voting records, citing votes on days when no votes took place, and misinterpreting what the votes actually meant.

However, he does not dispute South's accounts of Percy's votes on tax indexing, increasing the amount of exemptions, or repealing the deductions on gasoline taxes.

"On those three points, Percy apparently did vote as South outlined," Nowlan says.

But he writes them off by saying they were only amendments, and he does not know if it is good policy to vote for every tax cut amendment.

Clubs are certainly clearer.

Avoid honey for infants, doctors say

The feeding of honey to infants under one year of age is causing concern throughout the country as a possible cause of infant botulism, according to Dr. George T. Wilkins Jr., a Granite City pediatrician and immediate past president of the Illinois State Medical Society.

The safety of honey as a food for older children and adults remains unquestioned.

Botulism is a disease of the nervous system caused by botulin, a toxin, developed in spoiled foods and sometimes eaten by animals and humans, Dr. Wilkins said.

A recent medical report based on findings of infant botulism suggests that honey be avoided in small infants.

According to Dr. J. P. Keating, "There has been one case of infant botulism at St. Louis Children's Hospital this year. The infant required ventilator support for two days, and recovered. The infant was being fed breast milk and honey water."

Ceremonies at office opening

U.S. Rep. Melvin Price is reminding the public of the opening of a new Social Security Administration office in downtown Belleville. He said the new office at 218 W. Main St. will serve as an addition to and not a replacement of the current East St. Louis office.

Persons in the Belleville area with any type of Social Security business can now go to an office nearer their homes. The new office formally opened Monday, with ceremonies from 8 to 9 a.m.

"This additional office will prove to be a convenience, I am sure," Price commented, "especially for those Social Security claimants who find transportation to East St. Louis a problem." The new branch office will be open each Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

ARREST FOR SOLICITING

Mary Duckson, 22, St. Louis, was charged with soliciting without a permit at 1:45 p.m. Monday, when officers allege she was seeking funds for the Granite City Steel Blast Furnace Division entrance.

Allegedly attempting to hail vehicles traveling on Edwardsville Road, she was released on payment of a $35 cash bond.

Area Bellringers appointed

Donald Patrick of Pontoon Beach and Mrs. Ralph Cooper of Venice have been named as Mental Health chairmen in their respective communities for the September 1978 Bellringer Campaign, it was announced by Harlow Piper, president of the Mental Health Association in Illinois.

The two area chairmen will recruit volunteers to go house-to-house in their areas during September. Anyone interested in becoming a Bellringer in the Venice area may call Mrs. Cooper at 876-1647, and in the Pontoon Beach area may call Patrick at 931-2700.

The Mental Health Association in Illinois is a volunteer association with members dedicated to informing the public about mental illness and mental health while helping the mentally ill and their families.

In the past, MHAH has been instrumental in the passage of bills to increase funds available for mental health care and has sponsored a number of bills improving care and aftercare, a spokesman said. MHAH also has worked to broaden the powers of 700 Boards.

As citizen advocates, the association works to see that government funds are spent effectively. Members would like to see a greater emphasis in state mental health dollars going to community mental health services.

The MHAH believes that education is a key factor in dealing with mental health issues, the spokesman said.

The association offers free literature to the public on alcoholism, children's mental health, depression and other mental health topics. For information, Quad-Cityans may write to the Mental Health Association in Illinois, 103 North Fifth, Room 304, Springfield, Ill. 62701.
